

Welcome to the Graduate College!

The Graduate College House Committee (GCHC) welcomes you to the Graduate College (GC) community. We hope this packet of information will make your adjustment to graduate life at Princeton a bit smoother. Graduate school may prove to be an academic challenge, but since we cannot make classes any easier, we work at making life outside of the classroom more enjoyable. The House Committee is a volunteer board of fourteen graduate students that makes use of your student dues to provide activities and services to the members of the Graduate College House, i.e. you!

The House Committee's work ranges from planning social events to providing firewood in the common areas. We can generally be reached at gchouse@princeton.edu; if you would like to report a specific problem with Graduate College facilities (e.g. the GC laundry machines), the fastest way is to email gcfix@princeton.edu. The Committee also maintains a website \(http://gchc.princeton.edu/\) with useful information about life at the Graduate College, including an online copy of this Guide with hyperlinks included. House Committee elections are held in the Fall. If you like what we do, we hope that you will consider joining us down the road.

You will find that the GC holds many pleasant surprises. Where else can you have an unlimited buffet for dinner during the week, Sunday brunch, and free breakfast; conveniently hang out in the bar in the basement playing pool with your friends; live with about 400 interesting and intelligent scholars; play soccer, tennis, basketball, and volleyball; learn how to play a carillon; and enjoy an entire social program every week? You can even experiment with ant colonies on your windowsill, as the physicist Richard Feynman did when he was here. The facilities of the Old GC and New GC are available to any resident of the GC or Annexes, including non-resident members of the Graduate College with only a few exceptions as noted in the Guide. Enjoy all that the GC has to offer, and fall in love with the cozy atmosphere and beautiful Collegiate Gothic architecture.

The 2019-2020 Graduate Student's Guide to the Universe is published by the Graduate College House Committee, which over the years has compiled the information included herein. If you have discovered an error or would like to make a suggestion, drop us a line at gchouse@princeton.edu.

Some Essentials for Survival

Maps

A good map can be useful when you are trying to get acquainted with the area. Campus maps are available online (<http://www.princeton.edu/main/visiting/>). For the downtown and surrounding area, you can buy the Professor Pathfinder map (<http://www.hedbergmaps.com/store/catalog/10020>) from the U-Store. It's a bit pricey at $6, but extremely useful. If you are driving, consider joining the American Automobile Association (AAA), which provides not only roadside assistance, but unlimited free maps to members. Of course, for most occasions, the good-old Google Map and peer advice from your senior students will meet your light wayfaring needs.

Porter's Lodge and Mailroom

In your first few days at the Graduate College, one of the places of primary importance will be the Porter's Lodge (609-258-3443, x8-3443). The Porter's Lodge is located in Entry 15, on the ground floor next to Cleveland Tower. The Porter's Lodge contains the GC Mailroom, and there are mailboxes lining the Porter's Lodge where you can pick up your regular mail. You can pick up packages from the staff inside the Lodge. Please be advised that the Porter's Lodge notifies students when a package arrives for them. If you have not received an email from the Porter's Lodge, your package has not arrived as of yet.

In addition, the Porter's Lodge manages the circulation of a variety of items. For instance, you can check out movies, vacuum cleaners, pool and sports equipment, board games, bicycle pumps, and more. Please contact the staff of the Porter's Lodge for additional information on the items that are in circulation. General weekday hours are 9:15 a.m. – 1:00 p.m., 1:45 p.m. – 9:00 p.m. Weekend hours are Saturday 11:00 a.m. – 4:00 p.m. and Sunday 11:15 a.m. – 7:15 p.m. Service hours are posted on its website (<http://gradport.princeton.edu>). If you are not on campus you will need to connect to the Princeton network via VPN (<http://helpdesk.princeton.edu/kb/display.plx?ID=6023>) to have full viewing access to the Porter's Lodge site. Please be respectful of Lodge hours. During hours when the Lodge is officially closed, do not disturb the staff inside the Lodge who may be trying to catch up with work, or may be taking a much-needed break.

The Porter's Lodge is staffed during the day by the Graduate College Office Coordinator and during the evening and on weekends by students or casual staff. The Coordinator manages the student porters and casual staff in the evening hours. The Coordinator can be contacted at lmcclist@princeton.edu.

Sending and receiving mail

Mail is to be picked up at the Porter's Lodge, where you will have an assigned box. Regardless of your room or mailbox number, your mailing address should follow the following format:

First name Last name
88 College Road West
Mailbox: _____
Princeton, NJ 08544

Use of the 08540 zip code can misdirect your mail to another address. Be sure to tell your friends and family to address everything with your first name (given name), followed by your last name (family name), written clearly in English. For purposes of sorting mail correctly, you must notify the GC Office Coordinator if you use a nickname/English name instead of your official name. Please include your mailbox number in your address and ensure you update your address if your mailbox changes. Any mail/packages that does not include your mailbox number will be sent back. Also note that mail addressed to "The Graduate School" may end up at Clio Hall!

Once your package has been received and processed, you will receive an email to pick it up. Note that while the Lodge staff will sign for your incoming deliveries if they are present when the delivery is attempted, there are many times when the Lodge will be closed for various reasons. If you have an urgent package arriving, it is your responsibility to arrange to meet the delivery agent to sign for your package. It is also suggested that you contact the Lodge staff well in advance to alert the staff that you have an urgent package, so that they can do their best to receive it.

In the alcove outside the Porter's Lodge, there are slots for outgoing U.S. (including international) and Campus Mail. Put the mail in the correct slot or risk it being lost to history! Questions about mail delivery at the GC should be addressed to lmclist@princeton.edu

The nearest USPS Post Office (<http://www.usps.com/>) is in Palmer Square (609-921-9563). (Open 8:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. Mon-Fri, 8:30 a.m. – 2:00 p.m. on Saturdays. Closed on Sundays.) Note that the USPS automated mailing machine may still be available a few hours after window service closes. If the line is too busy at the Post Office, you can try the UPS Store (<http://www.theupsstore.com/>) on Witherspoon Street. The nearest Fedex (<http://www.fedex.com/>) dropoff point is located Hinkson's (<http://www.hinksons.com/>), an office store on Spring Street. For almost the exact same services, you can find the Shipping and Packing Student Agency (609-258-1026), run by undergraduates, at Frist Campus Center. There you can use UPS Shipping, fax services, professional packing services, and more.

Graduate School staff

Kevin Fleming, Assistant Director of Residential Life resides at the GC on behalf of the Graduate School and serves as our official liaison to other University offices (Housing, Graduate School, Dining Services, etc.). Kevin's office is located on the 5th floor of Pyne Tower. You can contact Kevin by email at kevinaf@princeton.edu. He is the person to see if you have a seemingly insoluble conflict with your roommate or a neighbor, or if you are just feeling a bit lost, or overwhelmed by graduate school. Additionally, Kevin works with the Community Associates and the Assistant Dean for Student Life to provide a wide variety of social programs and events for graduate students. Contact Kevin if you have suggestions, concerns, or need to know something that wasn't covered by this guide.

Assistant Dean for Student Life Lily Secora can also be contacted for assistance. Lily Secora's office is located in Clio Hall, 1st floor, and she can be contacted at lsecora@princeton.edu or x8-3029 (609-258-3029) if you have suggestions, concerns, or questions about graduate life. Lily works on general graduate student life issues and provides support to individual students, plans events, and serves as an advisor to graduate student organizations.

Lynne McClister, The GC Office Coordinator, in addition to managing the Porter's Lodge, also coordinates some of the interaction between the Graduate School, Building Services and Housing. Feel free to contact the GC Office Coordinator if you have any general questions so that they can point you in the right direction.

Graduate student Community Associates (CA's) assist Kevin Fleming and Lily Secora in carrying out their duties. They plan and run social and community-building activities, such as trips, study breaks, movies, dances, orientations, information seminars, etc. They are a good resource and can be contacted regarding information on programs/activities at the University.

University Facilities and Building Services

Janitorial services are provided by Building Services. They collect garbage before 7:30 a.m. on weekdays; leave full waste and recycling bins just outside your door and they will empty them for you. Do not simply leave your waste and recycling bins outside of your door all the time, or they may be confiscated and you will be without bins. Cans, paper, glass bottles, and plastic bottles should be rinsed out and then placed in the large grey recycling containers minus any caps or lids. Recycling is mandated by state law. Recycling is important and required. Residents who do not recycle will not get their trash picked up.

Also note that you should take any really large items to the dumpsters yourself: the dumpsters are located in the parking lot behind OGC Entry 10. If you leave large quantities of trash outside your door when you move out at the end of the year, you can get fined.

Building Services are also the people to call (x8-3490) if you need more toilet paper, dirty shower curtain replacement or light bulbs for your room; if you call in the morning, they'll usually arrive by the afternoon. In the meantime, if you are desperately in need of toilet paper or regular light bulbs, the Porter's Lodge may have a small supply on hand. Building Services will clean bathrooms accessible without entering student rooms—typically in the NGC and some OGC suites.

If you have a maintenance issue with your room, such as bugs, broken windows, clogged drains, or insufficient heat in the winter, call x8-8000 to place a University Facilities work order. You can also place your work request online (<https://facilities.princeton.edu/services/request-service>). However, if you spot a major and urgent problem, such as large-scale flooding or incessantly flushing toilets, call Public Safety (x8-1000) instead to report the issue.

A tip for dealing with OGC cockroaches: many come up through dry in-suite bathroom drains (i.e. drains other than your shower drain). Use clear packing tape to seal drains off.

Moving and storage

If you need professional help moving, lifting, or hauling, you can hire “Handyman Dan” (609-599-4073) to help you; he’s helped many generations of GC residents move. At the end of the year, the undergraduates also operate a Moving and Storage Agency. Please enquire about their handling of fragile furniture if you have any.

You can store boxed items (no furniture or appliances) in the basement of the GC for the academic year or for the summer, on a space-available basis. Call Building Services at x8-3490 to schedule an appointment to have the storage room opened for you. There are many companies that also allow you to rent storage units on a monthly basis, such as Access Self Storage—share a large unit with friends to save money.

Laundry

There are laundry rooms in both the New and Old Graduate Colleges. The OGC Laundry Room is located in the basement underneath the Porter’s Lodge (go down the stairs directly across from the mail boxes, turn left at the bottom, and the washers and dryers are in the first room on the left). The NGC Laundry Room is in the basement of Entry 34. The washers cost 75 cents a load; the dryers are 25 cents for 15 minutes, and they accept quarters only. Don’t use other coins, they will cause the coin mechanism to jam. We recommend using 4 quarters (e.g. $1 equal to 60 minutes of drying time) when using the dryers with a medium load of clothes. Rolls of quarters can be purchased at any local bank.

Please be careful not to overload the washers, as small items of apparel may get sucked into the water pump. Overloading also leads to broken machines, which just make life more complicated for everybody. Also, please clean out the dryer lint trap before you run a load; otherwise, your clothes will dry more slowly. If you experience a problem, place the magnetic “machine broken” sign on the broken machine, and send a brief email to the House Committee Regular Facilities Officers (gcfix@princeton.edu) explaining the nature of the problem. Don not try to repair the machines by yourself. Tampering with the machines can be dangerous – you can be electrocuted!

Ironing boards are also provided. Please do not put your detergent bottles and laundry baskets on the ironing boards, because it gets the boards dirty. Finally, please be considerate of your fellow students and promptly remove your laundry from the machines after use. Loitering laundry should be placed in the House laundry baskets; please do not remove the House laundry baskets from the laundry room. It is the law of the jungle, and laundry can be removed from the machines by anyone, as soon as the cycle is done! If there are no baskets left, your clothes may end up on the floor.

There are two dry-cleaning places downtown: Craft Cleaners (225 Nassau St; 924-3242) and Pristine Fine Dry Cleaners (23 Spring St; 921-8700). In the Princeton Shopping Center there’s Signature Cleaners (301 N Harrison St; 921-8222). If you’ve got a car, there are many more options, such as Mayflower Cleaners (55 State Rd; 924-5144).

There are clothing donation bins in the OGC Laundry Room. Please only donate clothing that is good enough to give to a friend: no stains, holes, etc. Underwear is not accepted.

Fire regulations and health regulations

Carefully read the information you receive about fire regulations at the start of the term. The University has very stringent regulations regarding fire safety. There are several inspections per year and you'll be fined a lot of money for violations. Candles and incense are not permitted (and that includes birthday candles—however, you can apply to the Fire Marshal for a pricey one-time event permit if you so desire).

We are also generally not allowed heat-producing appliances in our rooms (including space heaters, mug warmers, halogen standing lamps, halogen desk lamps, etc.). Appliances we do use must be pre-approved by the Fire Marshal. Due to health regulations governing dormitories, we are also not allowed cooking appliances in our rooms (such as rice cookers, microwaves, etc.). Certain models of coffee makers and kettles are allowed by the University. Approved kettles, for example, must satisfy both fire and health regulations. We are also allowed several models of food-related appliances that are not deemed “cookware”: coffeemakers, popcorn makers, etc. The precise list of authorized heat-producing appliances can be found on the Housing Department website \(https://hres.princeton.edu/undergraduates/resident-services/policies-regulations/fire-safety-policies\).

Rooms in the Graduate College are subject to periodic unannounced checks to make sure that residents are in compliance. Inspectors will knock, announce themselves, and then enter. They will walk around and do a visual inspection, but will not physically invade your privacy by digging through your desk drawers. They will leave you a note stating that they have performed an inspection, and explaining when you will receive a report of results. Violations will result in confiscation of the offending item, as well as a hefty fine. Note that you can also be cited for blocking the path to your emergency exits (main door or “e-door,” i.e. the alternative exit door some OGC rooms have); putting any kind of sign on your doors (including a sign that says “EXIT”—don't try it); using an “outlet splitter” instead of a proper power strip; or for having a room so messy it's a danger to your health.

Carbon monoxide detectors are installed in all OGC rooms. Do not move or unplug these without permission from the Fire Marshal. Housing is responsible for keeping these detectors and your smoke detectors in good working condition (i.e. testing them and regularly changing the batteries). You will be charged if your carbon monoxide detector is not in your room when you move out.

Refrigerators/Freezers, Microwaves, MicroFridges

Each resident is allowed one small refrigerating appliance: i.e. you can have a stand-alone refrigerator or a stand-alone freezer, but not both. The capacity may not exceed 5.2 cubic feet. Keegerators are not permitted.

Regular microwaves are not allowed in the Graduate College (due to the above). However, MicroFridges (which are a specific type of appliance that combines a refrigerator and microwave, and doesn't use too much electricity) are allowed according to the regulations of the Housing Department \(https://hres.princeton.edu/undergraduates/resident-services/policies-regulations/fire-safety-policies\).

Fireplaces

Many OGC rooms have fireplaces. These fireplaces were sealed in 2004, as they were deemed not safe for use. The University has since chosen not to invest money in repairing and maintaining the private fireplaces in working order. However, the fireplaces in the OGC Common Room, and the NGC Common Room are regularly maintained, and you will often find students toasting marshmallows by the fire on a cold winter's night. Remember to turn the ventilation fan on if you make a fire.

Telephones

All rooms in the GC have active telephone jacks, so all you have to do is provide the telephone. There is a free caller ID service; you only need a phone with a caller ID feature. You can purchase a phone handset at the Telephone Services Office (located at the Frist OIT Solutions Center, Room 111; x8-1200), at the U-Store, or at CVS. If you want to have a cordless telephone, a 5.8 GHz set is recommended. 2.4 GHz phones may interfere with your dormitory's wireless network. Voice-over-IP (VOIP) phones are not supported at Princeton; if you can get yours to work, that's fine, but Telephone Services is not obligated to help you troubleshoot, and if yours interferes with the network you will be asked to disconnect it.

Use the Search function on the University's home page to find telephone listings in the Online Campus Directory. Also, U-CALL (x8-2255) is an automated campus telephone directory; you use the phone keypad to spell out the last name of the person you wish to call, and then the system will connect you automatically. Princeton's main switchboard can be reached at x8-3000.

Calling locally

The Princeton area code is 609. Most calls within the 609 area code are free, and all you need to do is dial “9” before the other seven digits. For on-campus calls you only have to dial the last five digits of the number. All student telephones are in the “986” exchange, so you dial 6-xxxx from any campus phone. Academic and administrative departments begin with the “258” exchange, so dial 8-xxxx from any campus phone.

In brief, if you are using a campus phone and calling

- a student room (609-986-xxxx): dial 6-xxxx.
- a University office (609-258-xxxx): dial 8-xxxx.
- a local number (609-xxx-xxxx): dial 9-xxx-xxxx.

Calling long distance

For long-distance, you will either need a particular type of calling card with a toll-free access number (usually 1-800-), or alternative options provided by the University's Student Telephone Services (<http://www.princeton.edu/studentphone/>). You can call Student Telephone Services (x8-2440). One of the options that they provide is a long-distance calling plan called the CellularLD provided by Mobilesphere. Another option is the use of a University-assigned Personal Access Code (PAC).

In brief, if you are using your room phone and a PAC to call

- within the United States: dial 9, then 1, then the area code and 7-digit telephone number. You will hear a series of fast beeps; enter your 7-digit PAC number and your call will go through. Note that some non-609 numbers (a few 732 numbers, for example) are actually local and won't require the PAC code.
- an international number: dial 9-011, then the country code, then the number, wait for the beeps, then dial your PAC code.

International students should be aware that the rates charged by the University for international calls can be quite high. Check the rates on the Telephone Services website. Unfortunately, the university phone system is set up in such a way that you cannot make your own long distance arrangements with a carrier with the exception of Mobilesphere, through the University's prepaid plan with them. You can, sometimes, use a calling card from your room. It is frequently cheaper to use a calling card, but note that some companies require that you call from a pay phone, not from your intra-university phone. (Mobilesphere has very competitive rates.)

The closest place to the GC to get a calling card is the Wawa. A good place to get cheap international calling cards is the newspaper kiosk in Palmer Square—ask them for the best card for the country you call the most. If you're willing to try online options, some graduate students recommend Skype or Google Voice.

Sending and receiving faxes

If you need to send or receive a fax, the Porter's Lodge has a fax machine available which you can use for a small fee. The phone number is (609) 258-9355.

Voicemail

Voicemail is free, and you do not need to bring an answering machine. To retrieve your voicemail you can dial x8-6423 (a number cleverly selected to spell VOICE) from an on-campus phone, or call the full number 609-

258-6423 from off-campus; and you can have your voicemail forwarded to your email, attached as a sound file. Your voicemail should be active when you reach campus; you can find out your voice mailbox number by calling x8-2234. The voicemail system allows you to set an option so that your cell phone will ring when you get new voicemail. More information on this is available at the Telephone Services website \(http://www.princeton.edu/studentphone/\).

Mobile phones

All of the major wireless carriers have towers on campus, including Verizon, AT&T, Sprint, and T-Mobile. Graduate students say that T-Mobile and Verizon have good reception inside the Graduate College and can even work in parts of the basement. (Rumor has it that the top of Cleveland Tower hosts a T-Mobile antenna!) Verizon fans say that you can make a call starting in Princeton and maintain the call all the way into NYC on the train with no loss of coverage.

Students are now included in the University's agreements with wireless carriers. The benefits offered to students vary. AT&T provides a 10% discount and T-Mobile offers an 8% discount on the Monthly Service Charge to students with an account under the University's Agreement (not connected to a "Family Plan"). Verizon offers equipment discounts to students. Information on how to take advantage of these offers is available at <http://www.princeton.edu/telecom/mobile-technology/purchasing-program/>.

Mobile phone expenditure can be considerably reduced if you get a "Family Plan" (5 users) or "Mobile Share" (10 users) with friends you trust to pay their share of the bill. Make sure to get a plan that includes all the minutes you will need, as some companies will bill around 50 cents per additional minute. If you do not want a contract, prepaid plans are also available and for international students may be the only option until obtaining a social security number.

Email

E-mail accounts based on Exchange are provided for all graduate students. You can check your quota and available space, as well as the steps for accessing mail on your own client at the knowledge base page for setting up email clients \(http://helpdesk.princeton.edu/kb/display.plx?ID=5088\).

Ethernet and Wireless

Dormnet is an Ethernet network connection service enabling students who own computing devices to access electronic resources from their rooms on a 24-hour basis. Anyone residing in the Graduate College may connect devices to the University network through Dormnet, but residents must register their computers, tablets, and smartphones with the OIT \(http://www.princeton.edu/oit\). If you have questions about Dormnet, visit the Dormnet page or call 8-HELP (x8-4357); please note that other residential complexes may be using different Ethernet provider.

The OIT has more information on Dormnet policies. Note that violations of copyright via illegal file sharing are actively prosecuted. The University considers copyright violation a serious offense. If you get an email from Rita Saltz, you're probably in hot water.

GC residents can print to laser printers in the computer clusters, one in each of the NGC and OGC, from their rooms; OIT's website explains how. Don't print more than you really need to, and try to print double-sided when you do. You have an annual printing limit and your usage is displayed when you print.

Princeton University wireless internet is available in many locations on campus, including the Graduate College. Private wireless routers are not permitted in dorm rooms, and you can be banned from the network for using them. If you are registered with Dormnet, you should be connecting to puwireless; however, if you have a friend visiting you, tell them connect to puvisitor. (Visitors are limited to seven days of access per calendar month on puvisitor.) Troubles with wireless should be reported to OIT at 8-HELP (x8-4357).

Purchasing Computers, Software, & Accessories

“Requirements” for computers that are connected to Dormnet may be found online \(http://kb.princeton.edu/9203\). You should be advised that these are suggestions more than requirements. OIT doesn’t actually check up on your computer, and you can get away with a lot less. However, if your computer is too ancient, you’re very likely to end up with computer troubles that even OIT’s Tech Clinic gurus can’t help you figure out—not fun when you’ve got assignments due or a thesis to write. (See “Computer Crises” below.)

Princeton offers computers through the Student Computer Initiative (SCI) website \(http://www.princeton.edu/sci\). SCI offers students a select group of Dell and Apple laptops at competitive prices. If you buy an SCI computer, your computer will arrive configured for the campus network. This means that when you set up your new computer in your room, you can just plug in to the network and go. Note that the SCI program may not always be the cheapest or most customizable way to get a computer, but the easy start-up, substantial insurance plan that is included, and the option of getting fast service under warranty on-campus at Frist, make it a good choice for many students.

You can buy software at an academic discount through the online PSR web store. The OIT Tech Depot in Frist sells a variety of computer accessories, and will lend you an Ethernet cable for free, for the duration of your stay here at Princeton.

Computer Crises

If your computer becomes suddenly ill, you have many support options, e.g.:

- call the Help Desk at 8-HELP (8-4357), 24 hours a day, seven days a week, email helpdesk@princeton.edu, or use online chat from the OIT home page;
- contact a graduate student Residential Computing Consultant at gradrcc@princeton.edu;
- take it to the OIT Tech Clinic in Frist. If it’s a hardware problem, the Tech Clinic is your best bet. But you must stay with your computer while it’s at the Clinic (generally around two hours), so bring something to read...

To help avoid computer-related crises:

- make sure you have the University’s site-licensed (i.e. free while you’re a student here) antivirus software installed and up to date, which you can download;
- back up your important files regularly, either on the Central File Server (a.k.a. your 5GB “H-drive”), or using the unlimited TSM Backup Service.

Cable TV & Online Music

The OGC Projector Room and D-bar use the Comcast provider at the request of residents. The OGC Projector Room also has a Netflix subscription.

The Princeton Public Library may offer music streaming services if you register in person at the Library with your library membership card. You can also stream music from the University’s Mendel Music Library, which is definitely a hidden gem on campus.

Parking

Parking at the GC and on campus is an important issue for car owners. Because campus security (known as the Public Safety) does collect revenues from errant students and their friends (at $25 a ticket, it can add up rapidly), it is best adhere to parking rules. To park at the GC, you will need a parking permit. For further information, call the Parking and Transportation Office \(http://www.princeton.edu/parking\) (x8-3157), or visit them in the New South Building. The easiest way to get a parking permit is at Fall Registration: bring your license plate number, make, and model. You can also obtain short-term passes for your visitors at New South.

Once properly stickered, you will be able to park in the main parking lot behind the Old Graduate College, Lot 19, accessible via Springdale Road. Because the lot is large and somewhat isolated, locking doors is a good idea. For short-term parking, there are two lots at the GC. The first is by the Tower, and the second is behind the NGC (accessible via Springdale; turn left onto the drive marked for Wyman House and keep left); these are two-hour lots and are patrolled regularly by Public Safety. There is one space in the Tower lot marked Special Permit Only for the CPC and another for the Wecar, both of which are reserved 24/7. Unauthorized parking in the Special Permit Only is forbidden.

On-campus parking is prohibited, unless you are a holder of a special pass. You will be issued several one-use passes at the beginning of the year. In addition, your professor can grant you special passes when work requires that you park on-campus. You may direct questions about parking regulations to the Parking and Transportation Office. Please note that many of the trees in the lot off Springdale Road produce a large quantity of sap that can descend onto your hood and windshield, especially in the spring and summer. In event of storm or other natural disasters, fallen branches may damage your car.

Public Safety

Aside from issuing parking tickets, Public Safety (x8-1000) runs an evening campus shuttle staffed by undergraduates (only during the school year when undergraduates are on campus). They will be willing to lend a hand if you find yourself stranded at Princeton Junction without a way to get back to Princeton.

More importantly, you can call Public Safety to transport a sick student to the University infirmary (McCosh Health Center) if needed. Public Safety will also open your room if you have locked yourself out, but they will swipe your TigerCard and charge your account $30 every time you avail yourself of their service. Another option during business hours is to visit the Graduate Housing office at the New South building to borrow the key and return it the same day.

Registering your bicycle and laptop with Public Safety on arrival is also recommended.

TigerCards (known as ID Cards, Prox Cards)

The Graduate College is equipped with a card security system for all entryways. If you lose your ID card, replacements are available at the TigerCard office (<http://www.princeton.edu/tigercard/>) in New South for a fee.

Smoking

The state of New Jersey has banned smoking in dormitories. This means that you may not smoke in any part of the GC, which is a dormitory. The smoking ban includes the D-bar. Furthermore, University policy prohibits smoking 20 feet from any area within a dorm; in particular, you may not smoke on balconies or under archways.

Painting

Painting of the rooms is not allowed. The Housing Office policy regarding painting can be found here: <http://facilities.princeton.edu/services/painting-services>

University Dining Services

Everybody in the Graduate College has to buy into the meal plan, and one of the best ways to meet your colleagues is over breakfast and dinner in Procter Hall. Almost all graduate students choose the 95-meals-per-semester plan. Make sure that you stay on pace to use all of your meals by the end of the semester, because you will not be refunded for unused meals. A free continental breakfast (i.e. not counted in the total number of weekly meals) is available Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. - 9:30 a.m. No lunch is served at the GC during the week. On Sunday brunch is served 11:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m., which is regarded by many as the highlight of the week. Arrive early if you like fresh fruit—it goes fast. Dinner runs 5:00 p.m. -8:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. You can check the week’s menus online at the Dining Services website (<http://www.princeton.edu/us/dining/>).

A summary of dining service at Procter Hall:

Continental breakfast: 7:30 a.m. - 9:30 a.m., Monday to Friday.

Dinner: 5:00 – 8:00 p.m., Monday to Friday

Brunch: 11:00 a.m. – 2:00 p.m., Sunday.

Lunch is not served.

Our meal contract is also good in any of the undergraduate halls. The undergraduate dining hall closest to the GC is in Forbes College on Alexander Road.

There is also a late meal option on weekdays. If you have missed the regular meal time at the GC, you have a small cash credit at the Frist Campus Center. The late meal times (and credit available for each) are: 2pm-3:30pm ($5.95) and 8:30 p.m. – 10:00 p.m. ($6.95). If you have extra meals, note that you can elect to use up to two meals at once (and get two credits’ worth) during a late meal period if you have not eaten a meal during the immediately preceding meal period. If you have eaten a meal in the immediately preceding meal period, you can still use one meal in the next late meal period. Finally, you may use up to 10 of your meals per semester for guests so that you can share the Procter Hall experience with your friends and family.

The Center for Jewish Life (<http://www.princeton.edu/hillel/>) has its own dining hall on campus and you may use your meal plan there. While their primary purpose is to nourish the Jewish community with kosher food, they do sometimes offer dinners to which any graduate student can get in free; get on their mailing list (<http://www.princeton.edu/hillel/student-life/join-mailing-list/>) for details.

Procter Hall is often closed over holidays and breaks. Sometimes only breakfast is offered—the best thing to do is to ask Dining Services for up-to-date information. Meals are, however, offered at one of the undergraduate dining halls for the weeklong breaks (fall recess, intersession, spring recess)—but you need to purchase a separate meal plan through Housing the week before the break; your regular plan will not be accepted. You can also charge meals during regular and break sessions to your student account.

Outside of the meal plan, you can buy meals by charging to your student account at Frist Campus Center, the Woodrow Wilson Café, the Chancellor Green Café, the E-Quad Café, or the Genomics Café (Icahn building); you will be billed monthly for these charges. The E-Quad and Genomics Cafés are run by Restaurant Associates, not Dining Services, so the food options are often different—and some say, better. Note that we are not allowed to eat at Prospect House (known as the Faculty Club) without being invited by faculty, unless there is a special event.

Also, very close to the GC is the Princeton Theological Seminary (PTS) cafeteria, in Templeton Hall. The food there isn’t all-you-can-eat, but it is often decent quality at a moderate price, and usually open even when Princeton’s food service shuts down. To get there from the GC, walk along College Road, pass the parking garage, and turn left into the PTS driveway. Templeton Hall is on your left at the top of the driveway.

Cooking is not allowed in student rooms, but there are three “snack” kitchens in the GC for student use (OGC Entry 4 basement, OGC Entry 9 Basement, and one in the NGC Common Area). Each kitchen has at least one refrigerator, stove, and microwave. The OGC Entry 4 kitchen has an ice machine as well. The NGC kitchen is equipped with personal lockers (request a locker in person at Graduate Housing in The New South Building). There is also a small vending café in the OGC Entry 14 basement, which includes a vending machine, a microwave and a sink.

Banking

Princeton is home to a number of wealthy people, and there is no shortage of banks. With a little shopping around, you will probably be able to find an account that meets your particular needs. Most banks are located on Nassau St. Look for student-oriented promotions at the start of September. You should always check to see what fees might apply.

Several banks in the area:

- Princeton University Federal Credit Union: 609.945.6200; ATM in Frist; main office at 104 Carnegie Center, Suite 103, Princeton (across Rt 1) and local office on campus at the 7th Floor of the New South Building.
- Chase: 609-683-6060; 16 Nassau St.
- PNC Bank: 609-497-6700; 76 Nassau St.
- Bank of America: 800-841-4000; 90 Nassau St.
- Sovereign Bank: 609-924-4498; 188 Nassau St.
- Wells Fargo : 609-921-6000; 194 Nassau St.

Most banks have free checking and no extra ATM charge on their machines if you keep a minimum balance somewhere between $600 and $2000, and some will waive charges if you have your stipend checks deposited directly into your account.

PUFCU has the lowest minimum balance in town, and the nicest people, some say. It even offers interest on the money in your checking and savings account. However, it does not do cash banking at its Frist kiosk location. You can access all available banking options at their on-campus location on the 7th floor of the New South Building.

Bank of America offers a great network of ATMs nationwide and a robust online banking website. It also offers a “secured credit card” which can help non-resident international students build up enough of a credit history to get a real credit card later on (since using a debit card will not help at all).

There are several ATMs from various banks at Frist. The ATM machine in the Wawa is a “free” one in that it will not add its own charges to your transaction, though your home bank might charge you for using an external ATM.

Princeton-issued checks can also be cashed depending on the bank. Inspect the check and take it to the appropriate bank; they usually ask to see your university ID. Money orders can also be purchased at the Post Office for a small fee, at CVS and perhaps at a few other places. Note that the U-Store (36 University Place) cashes checks for its members free of charge (you have to go to the office downstairs during business hours, 9am-5pm).

If you would like to make a start on some investments for the future, Princeton is home to the offices of a number of discount brokers, such as Charles Schwab (497-0109; 132 Nassau Street) and Prudential Securities (430-1878; 138 Nassau Street). Finally, you might also want to look into the prospect of internet banking for other investment products.

Working on and off campus

Despite the fact that Princeton stipends are among the most generous in the country, graduate students can always use a little extra. Many students have found summer internships, tutoring positions in town, or employment on-campus during the school year at the Porter’s Lodge, as Community Associates, as OIT Residential Computing Consultants or Help Desk consultants, and more. Make sure you know the rules of the Graduate School, any scholarship or fellowship you hold, and especially your visa rules if you’re an international student, before taking a part-time job! The Graduate School has a website (<http://gradschool.princeton.edu/policies/employment>) of information regarding employment policies. Contact lsecora@princeton.edu with questions.

McCosh Health Center

McCosh Health Center, located near Frist, offers both by-appointment and urgent care health services on the ground floor. Annual women's and men's health exams are also available. You can find out more about what is covered under the student health plan (and the optional dental and vision plans) from a representative on-site, or browse for health information in the Janet C. Morgan Wellness Health Library. Counseling and Psychological Services, offering consultations as well as individual and group therapy, is located on the third floor of McCosh. During the school year, if you are having issues and for some reason do not want to go back to the GC, you are allowed to stay the night at the infirmary ("boarding"). Call McCosh for more information (x8-3129). Summer hours and services are limited. When McCosh is closed, if you are having an emergency, don't hesitate to seek treatment at an area hospital the closest of which is the University Medical Center of Princeton at Plainsboro on Route 1.

Shopping

Princeton is an island of wealth in a sea of affluence. As such, rents are higher and prices are quite higher around the shops on Nassau Street. There are very few student-oriented shops within walking distance of the GC. The stores along Nassau Street and Palmer Square tend to be geared towards wealthy townspeople, tourists, and finicky pets. Chains like J. Crew sometimes have good sales though, and the commission store is worth visiting from time to time. Mostly, the big, inexpensive chain stores are all out on Route 1. TigerTransit's Saturday Shopper shuttles students to the Nassau Park malls. Please check their website (<http://www.princeton.edu/transportation/tigertransit.html>) for current schedules. NJ Transit Bus 605 runs from Palmer Square to Market Fair (a generally up-scale mall), Nassau Park (where you will find Target and Wal-Mart), Mercer Mall, and finally Quaker Bridge Mall, the largest shopping center in the area. Bus fee and schedule information can be found in the news kiosk at Palmer Square. The small Princeton Shopping Center is on Harrison Street, north of Nassau; NJ Transit Bus 606 will get you there. About 50 miles away in Pennsylvania is the King of Prussia Mall, the largest mall on the East coast.

If you have access to a car (see below for short-term rental programs Zipcar and WeCar), several outlet malls are reachable within a couple of hours. Better variety is found at Liberty Village, in Flemington, N.J. Franklin Mills Mall, outside of Philadelphia, is huge, but has only a few high-end stores (I-95 Exit 24, Woodhaven Rd.). The classiest outlets are the Woodbury Common Premium Outlets (NY State Thruway I-87 to Harriman, Exit 16), located just north of New Jersey.

If you like to browse small independent shops rather than shopping in malls, the cities of New Hope, PA and Lambertville, NJ make a great day trip. They are full of antique shops and sell a great variety of quirky, interesting, and artsy goods.

Groceries

The closest place to buy food is the Wawa, a 24-hour convenience store located at 152 Alexander Street, right next to the Princeton train station. The Wawa has a small selection of fresh fruit and vegetables in addition to standard convenience store fare. It sells the cheapest milk and bread in the neighborhood. You can also find an ever-expanding selection of prepared foods from local restaurants (Olives, D'Angelo's Italian Market, and more) or at the U-Store (36 University Place), open 8:00 a.m. – 4:00 a.m. when classes are in session.

A car, bus, or shuttle is recommended for getting to the area's large grocery stores. With the exception of the tow path, area roads are not well-designed for cyclists. McCaffrey's (301 Harrison Street) is located at the Princeton Shopping Center. In the opposite direction from the GC, there is Wegmans (240 Nassau Park Blvd), which offers a tremendous grocery shopping experience. Also on Route 1 there is a Whole Foods Market (3495 US Route 1 South), a chain supermarket which specializes in environmentally friendly products. The local Trader Joe's (3258 US Route 1 South) is perpetually popular, although this means the checkout line might be on the long side.

For Asian groceries, the Asian Food Markets in Plainsboro is probably closest (660 Plainsboro Rd). The next closest is Good Fortune, a massive supermarket (3151 Rt 27, Franklin). Reportedly, Plainsboro's Asian Food Markets have fresher produce, though at higher prices. Another option can be found a half-hour's drive away in Edison Kam Man Foods (511 Old Post Road; 908-248-9611). These supermarkets offer meat, produce, seafood, and baked goods. Han Ah Reum offers Korean products and excellent produce in a smaller, but immaculately clean shop (518-14 Old Post Road, Edison; 732-248-8586).

There are a few specialty food shops in town. D'Angelo's Italian Market offers genuine Italian food, as verified by Italian Princeton grad students; you can buy hot food at the counter and they have a grocery section as well. Nassau Street Seafood (256 Nassau St; 921-0620) has reasonably priced lunch combos and the best fish in the region, though at the highest prices. They also carry a small selection of quality produce. The best place to buy bulk spices is the local organic grocery store, Whole Earth Center (360 Nassau St; 924-7421). Bon Appetit in the Princeton Shopping Center specializes in European gourmet foods. There is also La Mexicana Grocery, where you can find Mexican foods and goods (150 Witherspoon St; 609-279-9404).

Liquor Stores

Several liquor stores are located within walking distance on Nassau and Witherspoon streets. They offer good selection (though not necessarily good value). Community Liquors (23 Witherspoon Street; 924-0750) and Princeton Wine and Liquor (174 Nassau Street; 924-0279) have the best local selection of mid-range to expensive wines. Varsity Liquors (234 Nassau Street; 924-0836) carries less expensive stuff. They do not advertise this discount, but Princeton Wine and Liquor gives students 10% off when paying with cash (5% with credit). Nassau Liquors (264 Nassau Street; 924-0031) is also a popular choice. Many wine lovers recommend the Princeton Corkscrew Wine Shop for its selection and recommendations (49 Hulfish St; Palmer Square West; 430-1200).

Hard liquor and champagne can be horribly overpriced in town. A short drive can save you up to $15/bottle. A lot of students go to Joe Canal's (Mercer Mall shopping center; 520-0008) for good prices and selection. Both Shop-Rite Liquors and Kendall Park Liquors have large selections and good prices. Shop-Rite is located on Quaker Bridge Road about 10 minutes south of Quaker Bridge Mall. Kendall Park Liquors is in a strip mall 6 miles east of Princeton on Highway 27 (Nassau Street). Trader Joe's and Wegman's both have a good beer and wine selection.

The House Committee recommends that you drink responsibly. Don't get into any bad habits! Grad school isn't that bad.

Dorm Furnishings

The closest place to buy basic dorm furnishings is the U-Store (36 University Place). You can also check out the TigerTrade (<http://trade.tigerapps.org/>) online bulletin board to buy used items from other students. Skillman Furniture Store offers used and new furniture (924-1881; 212 Alexander St.). Many students go to Target and Wal-Mart in the Nassau Park area off Route 1. Ikea also offers inexpensive furniture that is easy to assemble and take apart (1000 Ikea Drive, Elizabeth; 908-289-4488). They also offer delivery for a fee; it's cheapest if several students pool together their orders.

Before you buy appliances, make sure you have reviewed the refrigerator rules and the fire safety rules in the preceding sections, so you do not buy anything prohibited (e.g., halogen lamps, heaters, or microwaves). List of approved items can be found here (<http://hres.princeton.edu/undergraduates/resident-services/policies-regulations/fire-safety-policies>).

Books

Course books are sold at Labyrinth Books (122 Nassau Street). The Theological Book Agency (609-497-7735) of Princeton Theological Seminary, located right off of College Road, specializes in religion and philosophy. There is also a large community book sale each spring at PTS—a humanities bibliophile's dream. Of course many people also purchase books online at Amazon, AbeBooks, or Alibris. Bigwords is a useful site that compares prices from a number of online stores.

For nonacademic books, Princeton Public Library is housed in a beautiful building on Witherspoon Street. You can get a library card for free with proof of enrollment as a Princeton University student. There are used books for sale on the ground floor. Barnes & Noble (Market Fair, 3535 US Route 1) offers a large-chain bookstore experience with cafe seating just off Route 1.

Newspapers & Magazines

The House Committee subscribes to several daily newspapers and periodicals, which are available for reading in the OGC Common Room. Please do not remove the newspapers from the Common Room until they are a day old. If you bring them to the dining hall, please return them or they will get thrown out by Dining Services staff. The Committee also subscribes to a number of magazines. Please do not remove any magazine from the OGC Common Room until the next issue has arrived.

If you decide to get a personal newspaper subscription, it is recommended that you have the newspaper delivered to the GC, rather than mailed to you, so that you will have immediate access in the morning, and so that the newspapers will not clog your small mailbox.

Electronics

As mentioned earlier under “Purchasing Computers”, the OIT Tech Depot (<http://helpdesk.princeton.edu/kb/display.plx?ID=9454>) in Frist sells some computer accessories, and the OIT PSR website (<http://www.princeton.edu/software/software-store/>) sells software at an academic discount. You can also find some electronics for sale at the U-Store (36 University Place). Farther afield, the largest electronics retailer along Rt. 1 is. Many graduate students utilize the online electronics retailers Newegg and TigerDirect. And, as always, Amazon is probably the most popular choice.

Bicycles

A bicycle will certainly speed your trip from the GC to campus and back. Downtown, you’ll find Jay's Cycles near the E-Quad (249 Nassau St; 925-7233) and Kopp's Cycle Shop near Firestone (38 Spring St; 924-1052). Target and Wal-Mart also sell bicycles off Route 1. Buy a lock for your bike, and front and rear lights if you plan on riding at night. A helmet is always recommended—graduate students do get into accidents. And finally, do not forget to register your new bike with Transportation and Parking (<http://www.princeton.edu/transportation/bikewalk.html#1>)!

There are several bike racks scattered around the GC for your use. Please do not leave your bikes in other areas, such as archways or covered walkways around the GC.

As for those not wanting to buy a bike, the Princeton University has Zagster bike share program (<https://transportation.princeton.edu/options/zagster>). Members pay a one-time $20 fee, and through a smartphone app (iPhone/Android) can rent a bike from several locations on campus. Rentals less than two hours are free, and after that, are $2 per hour (maximum $20).

Pharmacies

In town, there’s the Princeton Pharmacy at the U-Store (36 University Place; 924-4545), CVS Pharmacy (172 Nassau St.; 683-1391), and Forer Pharmacy (160 Witherspoon St; 921-7287). At the Princeton Shopping Center, you will find Rite Aid Pharmacy (301 N Harrison St; 924-6125). The closest 24-hour pharmacy is CVS Pharmacy in Hamilton (Rt 33 Hamilton Square; 586-6384). Note that the Princeton Pharmacy is particularly convenient because if you are on the Student Health Plan, they will take care of the insurance paperwork for you automatically.

Salons and Barbershops

In town, your barber shop options include Mike’s Barber Shop (16 ½ Witherspoon St; 924-0944), Princeton Barber Shop (128 Nassau St; 921-8572), and Continental Barber Shop (37 Witherspoon St; 924-4225). Salons include La Jolie (6 Hulfish St; 924-4447) and Cosmo Bleu (170 Nassau St; 497-2538). Although there are a lot of options for hair care in downtown Princeton, hair cuts are generally pretty expensive. You can easily knock $10-$20 off the price of your haircut by going to Great Clips at the Princeton Shopping Center (301 N Harrison St, 924-1118). If you are shopping for Asian groceries in Plainsboro, you can try Silk Cut next door (600 Plainsboro Rd; 750-8868).

Miscellaneous

The only real stationer downtown is Hinkson's (28 Spring Street; 924-0112). You can also find a decent selection of school supplies at the U-Store (36 University Place). The Papery specializes in a wide variety of gift cards and trinkets (43 Hulfish Street; 279-0101), as does the Paper Source (82 Nassau Street; 921-0932)

Princeton Record Exchange has an excellent selection of records and CDs. People will come from far and wide to paw through the bins. (20 Tulane St; 921-0881)

If you are in the market for a camera or a passport, the staff at New York Camera gives good advice, and their prices are comparable to prices on line—plus they can often get your camera for you by the next day after you order. Cash/check preferred. (173 Nassau St; 924-7063).

GC Facilities

The Graduate College (GC) has 362 rooms and houses approximately 430 students. The GC has wireless internet. The GC also has a wide array of common spaces which you will find in the Essentials, Social, and Recreational sections. Please refer to our guidelines for information on reserving any of the GC facilities.

In general, all the spaces described below are open at all times of day to all residents, with the exception of the D-bar, which is restricted to members and the guests of members (all of whom must be over the age of 21). Please remember that residents may be trying to sleep or study in the building near you, however, so keep noise levels down from 10:00 p.m. to 9:00 a.m.

If you are interested in holding an event in the NGC common room or holding an event in the Coffee House, please contact Kevin Fleming at kevinaf@princeton.edu. Graduate students can apply for funding in support of events at the Graduate College. These events should take place in one of the public spaces of the GC: Dbar, screening rooms, common rooms, coffee house, outdoors. Events must be open to all graduate students, and we require that a promotion email be sent via the GC and Annex listservs. The maximum amount granted is $300 per event. We encourage submission of applications two weeks in advance of the proposed date. An application consists of a description of the event and an itemized budget including other sources of funding. Please note that we are unable to support purchases of alcohol. For more information, please contact gchouse@princeton.edu.

Common Room and Reading Room

Located between Procter Hall and the Porter's Lodge are the Reading Room and OGC Common Room. The small section closest to the Porter's Lodge is the Reading Room, which houses the Media Collection, an assortment of newspapers, and a magazine rack. The House subscribes to several newspapers. The House also subscribes to a number of magazines from the Advocate to New Yorker to Time. They are common property and are to remain in the Reading Room.

The OGC Common Room is used for study groups, board games, and the popular weekly Social Hour on Fridays after dinner. The Coats of Arms decorating the windows were designed by Charles J. Connick and represent the coats of arms of Lord John Berkeley and Sir George Carteret, the royal proprietors of the Colony of New Jersey; Sir Edmund Andros, who served in the colonial period as governor of New Jersey, as well as New York, New England, and Virginia; William Livingstone, first governor of the state; the royal colonies of East Jersey and West Jersey; and, finally, the arms of the State of New Jersey.

Coffee House

The GC Coffee House is an ideal place to study in a casual atmosphere. The Coffee House is located on the first floor of the 11th and 12th entryways of the OGC. Open from 8-11PM during the academic year, hours are posted on the menu board or on the coffeehouse instagram, @gccoffeehouse. Enjoy fresh coffee, tea, latté, cappuccino, gourmet hot chocolate or cider along with the occasional cookie, scone or snack while you work. The coffee house is also one of the only air conditioned work environments in the GC, making it a popular spot for group study and quiet conversation, as well as piano playing and weekend game nights. White boards are also available for student use. The space adjacent to the Coffee House proper was, in a past era, the Breakfast Room, and it is still occasionally referred to by this name.

Van Dyke Library

The Van Dyke Library is located on the first floor, to the right of Entry 5 (note that there is a restroom immediately adjacent to the library entrance). Newly redecorated, it provides a warm, comfortable environment and is designated for silent study. Please note that Van Dyke Library is occasionally used by the University, so it may not always be available. Squirrels love to join you in the library, snacking on the furniture while they're at it, so please close the windows if you're the last one out.

Old GC: the depths below

Beneath the main courtyard of the Old Graduate College is a basement. The basement is accessible from Entryways 1 through 15 (what would have been Entry 13 is known as Pyne Tower). Basement rooms are numbered for the entryways beneath which they are located.

Laundry Room

The OGC Laundry Room is located beneath the Porter's Lodge, next to the Projector Room.

Projector Room

The Projector Room is equipped with a large projector screen, cable, a Blu-ray player, and a surround sound audio system. The Projector Room is subscribed to a deluxe cable TV package that includes more channels than the standard TigerTV assortment. If you would like to watch a movie or a particular program, you may sign up in advance on the reservations board. Please do not touch the cables; it makes it difficult for the next person to use the system. Email gcfix@princeton.edu if there are any problems.

The Debasement Bar

The Debasement Bar (D-bar) is a private club managed by the House Committee. It serves resident and non-resident members of the Graduate College House who are over 21 years of age. Its facilities are divided into two parts: the D-bar proper (where the bar is), and the Social Lounge, the large room with couches, booths, a pool table, a dartboard, foosball tables, and a high-definition TV. The D-bar features music, dim lighting and a wide variety of cheap beer and cocktails—it's a good place to meet neighbors and colleagues. The 1st Tuesday of each month is Karaoke Night, and Pub Quiz is held on the 1st and 3rd Wednesdays of the month. Most weekends the D-bar features student DJs or bands, and hosts 1-2 large parties per semester. The D-bar is usually open nightly from 10:00 p.m. – 2:00 a.m., with limited summer hours, and the D-bar is closed for Reunions. Beer and liquor prices are the lowest you'll find anywhere, since the bar is run by students and operates as a non-profit private club.

State of New Jersey regulations cause us to restrict access to the D-bar to members of the House of the Graduate College (identified by a current GC membership sticker) and their guests. If you live in the GC or dues-paying Annexes and are at least 21 years of age, then you are automatically a member. Graduate students who live elsewhere may join by paying a small membership fee, being approved by the Graduate School, passing through a legally-mandated 72-hour waiting period, and finally claiming their membership stickers during daytime business hours at the Porter's Lodge, or at the D-bar. Note that when a member leaves, all guests must leave with the member; and no person may be signed in as a guest more than once per night. For issues concerning membership stickers, email gchouse@princeton.edu.

Smoking is not allowed in the D-bar. The bar staff collect any items left in the D-bar and leave it in a secure area overnight. If you leave something behind at the bar, you can retrieve it the following day during bar hours. For more information about the D-bar, see its website \(http://gchc.princeton.edu/dbar\).

Pool, Ping-Pong, and Vending Cafe area

Between the D-bar and the Projector Room are a vestibule, with tables for pool and foosball, and a vending café, where you can find a sink, microwave, and ping-pong table. Note that pool (billiards) and ping-pong equipment can be checked out of the Porter's Lodge or D-bar with your University ID.

Additional vending machines are located under OGC Entry 1.

OGC Computer Cluster

The computer room near entry 9 is home to PCs, Macs, a photocopier, a scanner, and a laser printer. This room is air-conditioned for the sake of the hardware. Problems with the computers and printer should be directed to clusters@princeton.edu. Note that the photocopier costs 5 cents a copy, and accepts dimes and nickels only. Complaints about the photocopier should be directed to the Regular Facilities Officers at gcfix@princeton.edu. The code to enter the Computer Room is 1-3-5-2.

OGC Kitchens

The smaller OGC kitchen is under Entry 9, immediately next to the computer room. The larger OGC kitchen is under Entry 4. Both kitchens contain a refrigerator-freezer, cupboard space, a microwave oven, and a conventional range. An ice machine is housed in the large kitchen. The kitchens are maintained by Building Services and the Housing Department. Kitchen rules and regulations are posted in both rooms.

Please be considerate: clean up after yourself. If the kitchens get too unsanitary, they will be shut down by Housing. Pots and pans left out for more than a day may be thrown out. Leave the counters clear and clean, and empty the drain-catcher if you have left stuff in it—yes, even if “some of the stuff was already there when you got there”! All food left in the fridges must be labeled with your name and the date. The fridges will be cleaned periodically and old food will be thrown out. Also cook carefully, so as not to set the kitchen on fire! Do not leave the stove unattended when cooking.

If there is a problem with the kitchens, call x8-8000 to report it (except for problems with the GC House ice machine, for which you should email gcfix@princeton.edu).

New GC

Most of the New GC facilities are located in the pair of twin buildings in the heart of the NGC.

The NGC Common Room and Book Exchange

The NGC Common Room is a smaller and more casual version of the room in the Old Graduate College, complete with couches. The Book Exchange is located on the shelves in the Common Room. You can take any books you like, as long as you donate the same number of books in exchange.

NGC TV Room

The New GC has its own TV Room for those who don't want to walk over to the OGC Projector Room; it's across the stone walkway from the NGC Common Room. There are Blu-ray and VCR players for residents' use. The TV Room houses half of the House's videocassette collection; the other half is housed in the Music Room.

Music Room

Located next to the TV Room, the Music Room contains an old piano, several chairs and several music stands. The door code is 6202. Please don't share the codes with people who are not GC residents.

For those who use the music room located in the New Graduate College, these are the expectations of you as you use this space. First, this space is meant to be utilized by Graduate College residents only. Also, given that the music room is situated in a residential area, only instruments without amplifiers may be used out of respect for our residents. The official hours for the NGC music room are from 9am-10pm daily. That said, Graduate College residents being able to live and study at the GC without noise disturbance will always take priority over an extra-curricular activity such as the music room. So we reserve the right to request individuals to stop utilizing the space should it pose a problem with residents/should we receive complaints about the noise level. Please note that noise from instruments such as drums carry even with the windows closed. All residents who utilize the music room are expected to adhere to these set hours and parameters so that other residents are not disturbed.

Extracurricular life

Student and campus organizations are a great way to meet new people and have fun. Social Activities Officers (SAOs), Special Events Officers, Community Associates sponsor parties and events. The SAOs run Social Hours, offering free cocktails and milkshakes every Friday evening during the academic year from 8:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. in the OGC Common Room (and occasionally during the summer). Social Hour is a great way to kick off the weekend and mingle with other grad students. Naturally, there are always crowds at the Dbar (<http://gchc.princeton.edu/dbar/>), which is open most nights (see their website for a detailed calendar of events and opening hours), and the Coffee House, offering coffee, tea and dessert (see the chalkboard at the Coffee House for a regularly updated schedule of service hours). Periodically there are large-scale parties held in Procter Hall and the OGC Common Room, most notably the Halloween Party or Fall Ball in the fall semester and Graduate Formal in the spring semester, which have featured great music by various local DJs, a photographer, and complimentary refreshments and cocktails.

On campus, the Frist Campus Center includes a spacious food court. For those looking for a quieter atmosphere than Frist, there is always the basement of Murray-Dodge Hall, where you can find a wide variety of herbal teas and cookies. Refreshments are free, but they do have a cup for donations, and you have to wash your own mug when you are done. Hours are 9:00 p.m. or 10:00 p.m. to 12:00 a.m. Meanwhile, the undergraduates lurk on “the Street” (officially known as Prospect Ave.) Thursday and Saturday nights; sometimes you can get in to their parties, sometimes the parties are closed.

Movies

The only movie theater within walking distance is the Princeton Garden Theater (160 Nassau Street; 683-7595). The Garden specializes in good films: independent (“indie”) films, dramas, and non-Hollywood films are the staple, with an occasional quality big-Hollywood release thrown in for flavor. Free movie screenings sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Government at the Garden Theater Thursday-Saturday during the academic semester. Montgomery Cinemas (1325 US Highway 206; 924-7444), a 10-minute drive up route 206, features the same genre, only with more screens.

Within a 10-15 minute car ride your choices for mainstream cinema improve dramatically. For a truly huge multiplex experience complete with IMAX, the AMC Hamilton 24 (325 Sloan Avenue; 890-4900) features stadium seating in 24 auditoriums. Market Fair (520-8700) on Route 1 (also accessible via Canal Pointe Road) is also popular and the closest. Renovations of the theater are underway, and it is expected to reopen for Fall 2015. All local cinemas offer discounted matinee prices. Multiplex Cinemas at Town Center Plaza offers half-price tickets on all Tuesday shows (319 Route 130 North, East Windsor).

On campus, the University Film Organization (UFO) shows second run films in the Frist Campus Center. Tickets are extremely cheap. Also, some conferences and some classes will show films at the Jimmy Stewart Theater, located at 185 Nassau Street. Not sure how to check what’s playing there, but if a class is watching it, usually around 7pm, there is no reason you cannot sit yourself down with the rest of the students. No food or drink is allowed in the Frist or Jimmy Stewart theaters.

Right here at the Graduate College, however, the Porter's Lodge has a video library, with selections ranging from popular to obscure. Blu-ray discs and DVDs can be checked out for 48 hours with your University ID: return them on time or the Lodge will flood your inbox with emails. If you would like to reserve the OGC Projector Room in the Entry 15 basement, or the NGC TV Room, please make use of the reservations boards in those rooms. If you remember how to use a videocassette player, the House VHS collection is located in the NGC TV Room and Music Room and operates on the honor system. The Porter’s Lodge also has a good selection of classical music in its CD music library.

A very nice selection of DVDs can also be rented at the Princeton Public Library downtown on Witherspoon Street for a small fee, once you sign up for a (free) library card: just beware of overdue fines.

Events

Every week there are countless lectures, arts and cultural events, conferences, etc. at Princeton. If you are curious about what is happening there are several ways of keeping up. The Public Events Calendar has almost all official university events, and most of the academic lectures. You can also pick up the Princeton University Bulletin (<http://www.princeton.edu/communications/services/bulletin/>), available at several places around campus. This has almost the same information as the Events Calendar, plus some articles about Princeton goings-on. The Daily Princetonian is the campus's newspaper of news, sports, and opinion. They also run ads for campus events. They do not deliver to the GC, but copies are available around campus. Useful information about the news and events in town can be found at Planet Princeton.

The University provides all graduate students with Passport to the Arts tickets, which you can use to attend the world-class productions at McCarter Theater, or the student productions on campus free of charge. Please be sure to read the fine print in the front of the Passport booklet for instructions on how and when you can use your free tickets.

There are several listservs you can join that provide event information:

- gc-res-events: contact gchouse@princeton.edu
- dbar-events: must be 21 years of age or older to subscribe, <http://www.princeton.edu/~dbar/subscribe>

Recreation

A variety of athletic equipment is available from the Porter's Lodge, including tennis, squash, softball, basketball, volleyball, and hockey; when in doubt, ask the porter. Indoors, there are pool, ping-pong, and air hockey tables in the OGC basement, and foosball and pool tables in the D-bar. Equipment for these games is also available in the Porter's Lodge or D-bar. Board games, croquet, and poker chips can be signed out from the Porter's Lodge, too. The GC Tennis Courts are located just across College Road from the New GC. Volleyball and basketball courts are located south of the OGC. The GC south lawn is often used for cricket and soccer.

GC residents compete against the undergraduate eating clubs and residential colleges in the Princeton intramural sports leagues. The Graduate College has frequently been intramurals champions! The Athletics Chair of the House Committee is in charge of organizing these teams. Intramural announcements will be posted to the gc-res-events mailing list; join the listserve online.

Dillon Gym is the heart of most campus athletics, and questions about the numerous programs offered by Dillon, from horseback riding through ice skating, should be directed to Athletics Department staff. Stressed? You can also pay for massages onsite. Information is online (<http://www.princeton.edu/campusrec/dillon-gym/>).

If you ever feel the urge to escape the confines of the campus, the university Outdoor Action program (OA: 8-3552, hotline: 8-6417) runs a variety of outdoor activities and trips, such as hiking, climbing (there is even a climbing wall on campus), skiing, and kayaking. There is also the Rockville Climbing Center (200 Whitehead Rd., Hamilton NJ; 631-ROCK). Carnegie Lake Rowing Association is a community rowing club based out of the Princeton boat house, which has a program for novices starting every September. If you want to be on the water at a more relaxed pace, try an outing on the lake with a rented kayak from Princeton Canoe & Kayak.

There are also several parks in the Princeton area which are good for walks and picnics, most notably the Mountain Lakes Nature Preserve on Route 206. However, if you've never hiked around in the U.S. before, you should educate yourself a little first. Try to avoid poison ivy, which can cause a very uncomfortable allergic reaction, and deer ticks, which can harbor Lyme disease. Sunscreen and insect repellent are also recommended.

Golf can be played at the venerable Springdale Golf Course next door for a relatively hefty fee, though substantially subsidized.

The Game

The Game is shrouded in secrecy, but it is truly a not-to-be-missed activity that everyone is welcome to play. Teams (which are a mix of new and current graduate students) are given a series of clues to solve, leading them around campus to the final destination, at which there is a pizza party. Pre-registration is strongly recommended. There are usually about 100 players total that play for an entire afternoon in September, vying for the glory of winning and the Prize of All Prizes. No special knowledge is needed, and it is hailed as one of the most awesome experiences of graduate school at Princeton. Want to play? Check it out at <http://www.princeton.edu/~thegame>.

Graduate Student Organizations

There are a number of graduate student organizations on campus, as well as several undergraduate organizations with active graduate student participants. The reader should note that the Graduate School maintains an up-to-date directory of student organizations at <http://gradschool.princeton.edu/life-princeton/our-community/studentorg>.

Residential Committees

There are House Committee equivalents for the residential apartment complexes. Lawrence Committee serves the Lawrence Apartments (lawraps@princeton.edu). Lakeside Apartments Committee serves the Lakeside residents (lakesidecomm@princeton.edu).

Student Government

The Graduate Student Government (GSG) is the information and advocacy body that represents the interests of graduate students to the administration. The GSG Assembly meets on the second Wednesday of each month. Meetings of the Assembly are open to all graduate students to attend and participate, and a small dinner is usually provided. Particular members of the administration and the graduate school are often invited to attend these meetings so they provide a valuable forum for a free and open discussion about matters that affect graduate students.

The GSG Assembly is (formally) comprised of one voting delegate from each academic department in the University. Elections for departmental representatives are conducted on a department-by-department basis, and usually take place early in the fall of each year. Go to <https://gsg.princeton.edu/gsg-officers-and-reps/> for a list of current representatives. There are occasionally vacancies for representatives from some departments. If your department's position is vacant and you would like to become a GSG representative, feel free to contact the GSG (gsg@princeton.edu). The GSG also elects representatives to the Council of the Princeton University Community (CPUC) and the University's various committees, including the Priorities and Governance Committees.

The GSG Events Board has a significant pool of funds which it distributes to clubs and groups that organize events for graduate students. Visit: <https://gsg.princeton.edu/13-2/events-board-funding-guidelines/> if you wish to apply for funding. In addition, the GSG organizes several social events each year. These include the annual Wine and Cheese Social in the fall, the annual End of Semester Party and various events over the summer.

The Graduate Student Government website contains a lot of information (<https://gsg.princeton.edu/information-for-students/>) about issues that you might encounter during your time at Princeton. These include an extensive FAQ regarding the Student Health Plan, information about funding for travel grants, the campus shuttle and so on. If you have any questions or concerns or suggestions about any issue facing graduate students, feel free to contact the GSG (gsg@princeton.edu).

The Undergraduate Student Government (USG) offers some nifty services through its Point website \(http://point.princeton.edu/\). There, you will find TigerTrade (<http://ttrade.tigerapps.org/>), which offers very useful classifieds (particularly for cheap furniture), a section about Princeton area restaurants, information on Princeton events, etc.

Other Campus Organizations

Alumni Associations

The Association of Princeton Graduate Alumni (APGA) fosters intellectual, professional and social networks among graduate alumni and current graduate students. APGA events throughout the year give current graduate students a chance to meet graduate alumni. Questions? Suggestions for programs? Contact the APGA (apga@princeton.edu).

Several useful email listservs can be found on TigerNet, where the Princeton University Alumni Association provides online services, including listservs dealing with real estate (including tri-state area sublets) and travel.

International Center

The Davis International Center (<http://www.princeton.edu/~intlctr>) answers to special needs of Princeton's foreign students and visiting scholars, and provides a platform and focal point for intercultural exchanges and international understanding. The center's more than 200 community and campus volunteers serve as host families, English language partners and community resource people. Students and organizations work with the center's staff to organize a variety of social, cultural, educational and service programs in order to foster a larger and international community and to enhance Princetonians' cosmopolitan outlook. For more information, stop by the first floor at 87 Prospect Avenue, call 609-258-5006, or contact the director, Jacqueline Leighton at jleight@princeton.edu.

Women's Center

The Princeton University Women's Center (<http://www.princeton.edu/~womenctr/>) is at 243 Frist Campus Center. Its mission is to provide space (conceptual and real) for all women; increase awareness of issues affecting women on campus, in the academy, and in global society; advocate to create and maintain a campus climate which enhances the quality of life of women; and to facilitate connections between individual community members. Princeton students are welcome to use the extensive library, lounge, and conference room for gatherings, meetings, or quiet study. The Center's full-time Director and Graduate Intern provide support services such as discussion groups and workshops. Contact women@princeton.edu or call 609-258-5565.

LGBT Center

Located at 246 Frist Campus Center, Princeton University's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender (LGBT) Center (<http://www.princeton.edu/lgbt/>) is by, for, and about lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex, questioning, and ally members of the Princeton University community. The LGBT Center works to create a safe and supportive academic environment through educational opportunities and advocating for the needs and concerns of LGBT students. Its goal is to enhance the Princeton University campus community and to ensure the advancement of Princeton students' academic pursuits by creating an open and affirming environment void of homophobia, heterosexism, and gender bias. The Center's full-time director, Debbie Bazarsky, and coordinator, Andy Cofino, provide support services such as discussion groups and workshops. Contact lgbt@princeton.edu or call 258-1353.

Sexual Harassment/Assault Advising, Resources and Education (SHARE)

The Sexual Harassment/Assault Advising, Resources and Education (SHARE) office is a victim-centered, confidential resource on campus for the Princeton University community.

SHARE provides crisis response, support, advocacy, education, and referral services to those who are dealing with incidents of interpersonal violence and abuse including sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating/domestic violence, and stalking.

Food & Drink

For those of you who don't live by books and lectures alone, there are many off-campus dining options in the immediate Princeton area which range from take-out sandwich and pizza joints to posh restaurants best saved for when an out-of-town guest is treating you. The turn-over rates for restaurants in this area is somewhat high, so some of these restaurants may morph into newer, and hopefully better ones. Most of the restaurants listed here are either in the vicinity of Nassau Street or on Route 1, though a few restaurants are tucked away in nearby towns. A * by the restaurant's name indicates that this restaurant is really too far to walk. BYOB means you can bring your own alcoholic beverage with you to drink with your meal.

Please note that as with any review, the opinions expressed below are based on personal experiences. For additional foodie advice, try other food review websites (such as Chowhound and Yelp).

Bakeries

Chez Alice. Gourmet take-out. Also offers coffee and dessert. (5 Palmer Square West; 921-6760).

The Little Chef. Heavenly desserts, and even more heavenly croissant; a great place to get a birthday cake for someone you really like. (8 S. Tulane St.; 924-5335).

Panera. See Chain Restaurants.

Small World Coffee. See Coffee.

Witherspoon Bread Company. The Witherspoon Bread Company produces a wide array of fresh-baked breads and pastries. (74 Witherspoon; 688-0188)

Coffee

Café Vienna. Opened in April of 2014, offers delicious desserts and a quaint atmosphere for light afternoon reading. (200 Nassau St)

GC Coffee House. The Coffee House is located between entryways 11 and 12 of the OGC. It's a popular place for studying during the week and for playing games over the weekend. It's subsidized by the House Committee, so prices are low and free small chocolates are plentiful. There is a chalkboard at the Coffee House with regularly updated schedule of service hours.

The Little Chef. European-style coffee with excellent pastries. (8 S. Tulane St.; 924-5335).

Rojo's Roastery. Artisan coffee roaster right next to the famous Bent Spoon ice cream shop. One of the newest residents of the Palmer Square commercial community.

Small World Coffee. A very popular hangout for grad students, Small World can get quite crowded with folks nibbling on cakes and muffins. The Witherspoon location offers more seating; the E-quad location is more drink-and-run (14 Witherspoon St.; 924-4377 and 254 Nassau St.; 921-8011). Cash only. Free wifi available.

Starbucks. It's Starbucks (100 Nassau Street; 279-9204).

Diners

Americana Diner.* A deluxe diner for diner fans. Classy food presentation, plus retro decor. (359 Rt 130, East Windsor; 448-4477)

Mastori's.* Located in Bordentown (144 Rte 130; 298-4650), this upscale diner serves fantastic sweet bread with every meal.

Omega Diner.* Far away, but a great option. Huge portions, reasonable prices and good cooking. (1337 Rt 1, North Brunswick; 732-745-2628)

Princetonian Diner.* Located on Route 1 south of Princeton, near Meadow Rd. It's relatively close to campus; prices are ok, food is OK. (Rt 1; 452-2272)

Red Oak Diner.* Standard light American fare. (1217 Rt 206 N, Princeton, NJ 08540; 430-8200).

Zorba's Brother. A diner with a Greek twist. Good food and service, and the possibility of getting a baklava fix. (80 Nassau Street; 279-0999)

Ice Cream, Frozen Yogurt, & Dessert

The concentration of dessert places in Princeton itself and the surrounding area is quite astounding, so your sweet tooth will be in for quite a treat:

Baskin-Robbins.* Several area locations house this national chain with its beloved mint chocolate chip ice cream.

Bent Spoon. Some say this is the best ice cream in town. It offers “artisan ice cream” and has a bakery. Everything is very yummy, if pricey. You can taste before you buy. (35 Palmer Square; 924-2368)

Fruity Yogurt. This is a branch of a local New Jersey chain. They have fruit-flavoured frozen yogurts to which toppings can be added. They also have bubble tea. (166 Nassau Street; 924-5335)

Dolceria. The newest entry in the Princeton ice-cream scene, this place specializes in gelatos. It's located at the Princeton Shopping Center (301 N Harrison Street)

Halo Pub & Halo Fête. Others say that Halo Pub is the best ice cream in Princeton. Good hot drinks too. Halo Farms, where the pub gets its supply, is located within driving distance, and pints are extremely cheap. Open till 11pm every night. Next door is the French-inspired pastry shop, Halo Fête, which specializes in desserts that incorporate the Halo ice cream in some way. (9 Hulfish Street; 921-1710)

House Of Cupcakes. A large variety of cupcakes on offer here. (30 Witherspoon St, 924-0085)

The Little Chef. In the summertime the Little Chef sometimes makes his own sorbet. Highly recommended. (8 S. Tulane St.; 924-5335)

Sketch Yogurt & Pizza. This place distinguishes itself from its ice-cream competitors by being the first place in town to sell frozen yogurt instead. It's self serve so you can add whatever toppings you want. Great pizza, too. Cash only. (84 Nassau St; 454-3057)

Thomas Sweets. Great ice cream and chocolates. Offers “blend-ins” of up to three toppings. It has two locations; the Nassau street location is ice-cream only and makes it well-positioned for a post-lunch ice cream run. The Palmer street is chocolates only and is great for a birthday gift (29 Palmer Square; 683-7222 and 179 Nassau Street; 683-8720).

Sandwiches & Salads

Bon Appetit.* Gourmet deli sandwiches. Real prosciutto, quality cheeses, and European chocolates—all at a price, of course. (Princeton Shopping Center, 301 N. Harrison St.; 924-7755)

Chuck's Spring Street Cafe. Hidden away off Witherspoon, a block off of Nassau Street. The best buffalo wings in Princeton. Many fried foods. (16 Spring Street; 921-0027)

George's Roasters and Ribs. A little more expensive than Hoagie Haven, but overall worth it. There is even a tiny seating area. Try the Cowboy Chicken Sandwich, which is a classic. Closed Sundays. (244 Nassau Street; 252-0419)

Hoagie Haven. Good take-out sandwiches for great prices. $6 can last you lunch and dinner since the sandwiches are huge. A very popular spot. Service is fast. (242 Nassau St; 921-7723)

Tico's Eatery and Juice Bar. Tucked away off Witherspoon, this little cafe has a nice selection of salads, soups, and sandwiches, as well as smoothies and juices. It is reasonably priced and brightly lit. (33 Witherspoon St; 252-0300)

Nassau Street Seafood. It's mainly a fish market, but they serve a really fantastic crabcake sandwich. (256 Nassau St; 921-0620)

Olives. This Mediterranean catering outfit does a speedy take-out business with some of the best lunch food you can get in Princeton. Their legendary hummus is the best in the area. Student discount (no tax for students). (22 Witherspoon St; 921-1569)

Princeton Public Library. Chez Alice now operates a little café just inside the entrance to the library, offering sandwiches, soups, salads, and, of course, desserts.

The Red Onion. This Nassau Street take-out sandwich shop has a good reputation among students. (Shop 16, 20 Nassau St; 924-6667)

Witherspoon Bread Company. Good mozzarella-tomato-basil sandwiches, and prosciutto sandwiches. Grab a bite and find a seat outside in the sun, or head back to campus. (74 Witherspoon St; 688-0188)

Say Cheez. Offers custom-made grilled cheese sandwiches and homemade soups. (183 Nassau St; 924-2454)

Pizza

Alfonso's Pizzeria & Restaurant. Excellent Pizza, pasta and salads. A bit of a hike up Route 206, but it's worth it. (Princeton North Shopping Center, Rt 206; 924-8351).

Conte's. Beer and pizza, 15-minute walk north on Witherspoon. Very popular as a traditional "Princeton" place. Often gets crowded around 6-7pm (339 Witherspoon St; 921-8041)

Massimo's. The closest pizza to Firestone Library. (110 Nassau Street; 924-0777)

Nomad Pizza.* One of the best pizzas in town. A bit far away, and a bit pricy, but worth it for special occasions. (301 N Harrison St, Princeton, NJ 08540; 609-285-5187)

Papa John's.* A good choice for inexpensive pizza delivered to you. Ask about specials. Student discount available. (175 Washington Rd; 419-0900)

Pizza Star.* Your pizza option at the Princeton Shopping Center. (310 North Harrison St; 921-7422)

Slice Between. Same owners as Hoagie Haven and George's, so you can have your hoagie toppings on a thin-slice pizza instead. The crust is really good. (242 Nassau Street; 924-9321)

Valentino's Pizzeria.* The closest pizza to Plasma Physics, and an E-Quad delivery favorite. (110-A Rockingham Row, Forrestal Village; 520-1191)

Italian Fusion

Bertucci's.* A chain restaurant with excellent gourmet pizzas and pastas. (2313 Rt 1 South, North Brunswick; (732) 297-9800)

D'Angelo's Italian Market. Serves hot Italian food at the counter and has both inside and outside seating area. You can also get Italian-themed groceries here. (35 Spring Street, 921-0404)

Eno Terra*. Located in Kingston. Same owners as Teresa Café, and just as good (4484 Rt. 27, Kingston)

Fedora.* Located on Main St. in Lawrenceville, Fedora is a pastry shop, a coffee shop, and a restaurant. Huge dinner salads. Interesting décor and cozy atmosphere. About a 15-20 minute drive down Rt. 206. (2633 Main St., Lawrenceville; 895-0844)

J.B. Winberie's. Right off Palmer Square, Winberie's has sandwiches, burgers, and pasta in a pleasant pub-like atmosphere. Offers a tempting Sunday brunch spread. (1 Palmer Square; 921-0700)

La Mezzaluna. Good Italian food in a cozy setting. Excellent flambé desserts—and tiramisu! BYOB. (25 Witherspoon Street; 688-8515)

Teresa Cafe. This nice Italian restaurant off of Palmer Square offers a menu of brick oven pizzas, pasta, fish, and meat dishes with Italian accents. The desserts are excellent. Be prepared for a wait during peak hours. (21 Palmer Square E; 921-1974)

Mexican

Chapin. Mexican-Guatemalan cuisine, walking distance from campus. No tables; just stools and a bar along the wall. Cash only. (146 Witherspoon St; 279-5772).

Qdoba. (140 Nassau Street, 921-2031)

Tortuga's.* Go down Witherspoon past the Princeton Hospital, turn left on Leigh Avenue. It's quite a walk, but an easy drive (parking available in a nearby lot). Good steak fajitas. Cash only. BYOB. (44 Leigh Avenue; 924-5143)

Taste of Mexico.* This is a family run business with only a handful of tables. The food is consistently tasty and well prepared. An excellent choice for vegetarians. (180 Nassau St., 924-0500)

Asian

Ajihei. Ajihei is known as “the sushi place in the basement” on Chambers St.; a very reliable friend of a past editor proclaimed this the best Japanese food west of New York. (11 Chambers St; 252-1158)

Crown Palace.* Far away, but good for a special banquet. Excellent high-end dishes: Peking duck, etc. (8 N Main St., Marlboro; 732-780-8882)

Hunan. Szechuan, Malaysian (exotic seafood!), Vietnamese, and, of course, Hunan cuisine, within walking distance of campus. (157 Witherspoon St; 921-6950)

Nassau Sushi. Formerly known as Nassau Bagel and Sushi, they serve sushi and spicy Korean food that's not too starchy or sugary. (179 Nassau St; 497-3275)

Penang.* You'll find Malaysian and Thai cuisine here, accompanied with bright orange chopsticks. A good place to take a big group--they have lots of seating. Roti canai and mango chicken are highly recommended. (635 Nassau Park Blvd, across from Sam's Club; 897-9088)

Pho 99.* Reasonable Vietnamese noodles, appetizers, and grilled meat in the Great Wall Supermarket shopping center. Cash Only (3151 Rt 27 Unit K, Franklin Park, NJ 08823; 732-821-1828).

Sakura Express. Sakura offers affordable sushi, teriyaki, and salad. Brothers Andrew and Albert “like to feed people,” and it shows. Packed day in and day out. (43 Witherspoon St; 430-1180)

Shanghai Park.* Quality Chinese food. People rave about their “soup dumplings”—but study proper technique before you try to eat one! Their dim sum can be twice the price you might expect per dish, but also nearly twice the portion size of an average dim sum place. (Princeton Shopping Center; 924-8001)

Soonja's Café. Down Alexander Rd., Soonja's offers Korean cuisine, including pricey sushi, as well as Thai food. (244 Alexander Road; 924-9260)

Thai Village. Thai food. (235 Nassau Street; 683-3896)

Tiger Noodles. Fast Chinese food, heavy on the MSG. Reasonable prices and good daily specials. The silver noodles are very popular, as well as the home style bean curd. The scallion pancakes don't disappoint. Cash or check only. (260 Nassau Street, 252-0663)

Tomo Sushi. A good choice for take-out Japanese with friendly service, near the E-Quad. (236 Nassau Street; 924-8897)

Wonder Seafood Restaurant.* Worth the trip for the weekend dim sum. Fast cart and tray service, authentic food; don't come for the decor. (1984 State Rt 27, Edison; 732-287-6328)

Indian

Crown of India.* Take Scudder's Mill Rd. to the Princeton Meadows Shopping Center for some wonderful Indian food in a dark, quiet, and peaceful place. (660 Plainsboro Rd.; 275-5707)

Chennai Chimney.* Offers authentic South Indian cuisine, with all you can eat, with good vegetarian options on the weekends for less than 20 dollars. (19 Chambers St, Princeton, NJ 08542; 609-608-0104)

Dosa Grill.* Offers authentic South Indian cuisine. (1980 Rt 27, North Brunswick; 732-422-6800)

Masala Grill. This beautiful restaurant has a lovely atmosphere and a heavenly brick oven aroma that fills the room. Expect to dine in a leisurely fashion. (15 Chambers St.; 921-0500)

Mehek. They offer tasty Indian cuisine as well as tea. Quick and easy takeout from the basement entrance if you're between E-Quad and Firestone. (164 Nassau St; 279-9191)

Tandoori Bite. Very good, very well priced, and excellent delivery. The service is extremely polite. (36 Witherspoon Street, 279-9700)

Udipi Cafe.* Located on Rt 27 in New Brunswick, this vegetarian restaurant serves South Indian cuisine, while other restaurants in this list tend to serve North Indian food. Proclaims a previous GCHC Secretary: "Every dish I have tried has been wonderful; the flavoring is excellent, the food is fresh and healthy, and the prices are extremely reasonable. Good choices include the Iddly/Vada, the Uthappam, and the Payasam." (3029 Rt 27, 732-422-8301)

Nice Restaurants

You will find a number of restaurants in Princeton whose prices (high) make them best for special occasions. The Alchemist and Barrister on Witherspoon Street. Le Plumet Royal is inside the Peacock Inn. For a more open atmosphere with good cuisine try Mediterra on Hulfish St. near Halo Pub. The Blue Point Grill on Nassau St, as well as Acacia in Lawrenceville are excellent choices. The Hyatt, while having a remarkable atmosphere, is fairly institutional. Walking down Witherspoon, do take a look into the windows to see what people are eating to get some idea.

If you have got the time and the funds and you fancy top-flight dining, however, venture out to New York City or down to Philadelphia, where the good restaurants are plentiful.

Miscellaneous

Efes Mediterranean Grill. Only Turkish place in Princeton and a good option for lunch or take-out option near Equad (235B Nassau Street; 683-1220)

Food Court, Forrestal Village.* This is right near both the Forrestal Campus and NEC, so if you work on Rt 1 North, you will probably end up there for lunch at some point. (Forrestal Village, Rt 1 North)

Istanbul Restaurant & Patisserie*. Possibly the best Turkish restaurant in the area, and very reasonably priced. Complete with Turkish coffee kiosk. (1000 Aaron Rd, N. Brunswick; 940-1122)

KC Prime Restaurant.* It's a steakhouse, but Sunday brunch is reputed to be especially good. (4160 Quakerbridge Rd, Trenton; 275-5418)

Main Street.* Located in Princeton Shopping Center, it calls itself "A Euro-American Bistro and Bar". (921-2779)

McCaffrey's Supermarket Cafe.* Much like the Wegmans Cafe, but a bit smaller. (Princeton Shopping Center)

Jammin' Crepes.* Nice local place to eat some crepes. They have an organic, local and eco-friendly vibe in their food that makes it not only delicious, but exciting. (20 Nassau St, Princeton; 924-5387)

PJ's Pancake House. Come to PJ's for a bit of Princeton character and a good selection of breakfast fare available all day. The dishes are made fresh. Treat yourself to a large fresh OJ and carve your initials into the tabletop. The line forms early on the weekend. (154 Nassau Street; 924-1353)

Princeton Theological Seminary Cafeteria. The seminary is right next to the GC and its cafeteria makes an inexpensive and friendly alternative to Procter Hall food. It is particularly valuable when Procter Hall is closed during holidays and the summer. In the seminary you buy your meal a la carte, but prices are great and you can easily fill up for less than $7. Free bread, peanut butter, and jelly are available.

Wegmans Food Market Cafe.* Choose from a selection of Wegmans prepared foods and eat in a pleasant upstairs seating area. (Nassau Park Blvd; 919-9320)

Whole Foods Market Cafe.* Arguably the best of the three supermarket cafes in the area. The triple squash soup is worth taking home. (3495 Brunswick Pike; 799-2919)

Chain Restaurants

Applebee's Neighborhood Grill and Bar.* Good, reliable American food. Their “riblets” are the classic dish to order. (Quaker Bridge Mall)

Big Fish Seafood Bistro.* The interior of this restaurant is really neat—where else can you find massive plastic fish, bubbles, and kelp? The food is fairly expensive, but the service and food are good and there is a large bar. (3535 Rt 1, Market Fair; 919-1179)

Cheesecake Factory.* For diehard cheesecake fans. (Quakerbridge Mall; 609-275-5887)

Joe's Crab Shack.* An unusual sort of chain, Joe's has more than just crabs, and has interesting phrases to read, posted all around the place. Get shellfish, though, if you want the full bib experience. (3191 Brunswick Pike/Rt 1 S 896-0360)

Old Man Rafferty's.* This chain has a branch near Somerville right on Rt 206 north of Princeton, making it a good stop on the way back from a long trip. It has lots of desserts and huge portions. Another branch in New Brunswick makes for a great dinner on the way back from New York City. (384 Rt 206 S, Hillsborough, NJ 08844; 908-904-9731 and 106 Albany St, New Brunswick, NJ 08901; 732-846-6153 and 6155)

Olive Garden.* Another Italian chain restaurant. It is open at night and has very good salad. (3345 Brunswick Pike / Rt 1; 987-9207)

On the Border.* On the Border makes its mark with its frozen margaritas. A good place to bring a crowd for Mexican food. (3567 Rt 1; 987-9222)

Panera. On Nassau Street near Washington, as well as in the Nassau Park mall, this chain offers a restaurant and bakery in one. Offers a wide variety of sandwiches and salads, and a soup and sandwich combination which is quite good. Also offers bagels, and dinner pizzas. Extremely popular with undergraduates; stays open until fairly late. (136 Nassau St; 683-5222)

P.F. Chang's.* If you like your Chinese food heavily Americanized, this is the place for you. A stand-alone building in the Market Fair mall area on Rt. 1. (3545 US-1, Princeton, NJ 08540; 799-5163)

Ruby Tuesdays.* Similar to TGI Friday's, but north on Rt 1 instead of south. (381 Rt 1; 514-1900)

TGI Friday's.* American food (3535 Rt 1 S, Market Fair; 520-0378)

“I'll Drink to that!” The Princeton Pub Guide

Alchemist and Barrister. This place attracts an older crowd but is still worth a visit. The food is good. If you're ok spending $10 on a burger, the ones here are pretty darn good. The bar has Flying Fish beer (a good local New Jersey brew) on tap. (28 Witherspoon St; 924-5555)

Conte's. Conte's is a piece of postwar Americana with a counter bar serving pizza and Peroni. However, pizza is a good stomach liner, and could be a good beginning to a night out. (339 Witherspoon; 921-8041)

The Dbar. The Dbar is the pub situated in the basement of the GC. For all students it should be a must, as it is local, very cheap and is full of people of your ilk. It has a good atmosphere, being situated in the bowels of the Princeton world—they couldn't have hidden it better if they tried. Hours are posted on Dbar's website (<http://gchc.princeton.edu/dbar>). There are pool tables, foosball tables, and a high-definition TV. The Dbar is well worth a visit during its peak period from Thursday to Saturday, or the rest of the week if you prefer a more mellow atmosphere. Friday night theme parties pack the place. Also remember the monthly Karaoke Night and Quiz Night. There is a good selection of beers and mixed drinks, so it's the traditional place to arrange to meet some friends for a cheap night out.

The Ivy. The pub has a lot of character, and the aura of a place to go and drink. One of the only places in town with a pool table and karaoke (on Thursdays!). (248 Nassau; 921-8555)

J.B. Winberie's. Winberie's is a few steps across Palmer Square from the Nassau Inn. Predominantly a restaurant, it also has a bar. Winberie's can be quite busy in the early evenings and on weekends. They have a very good but limited selection of beers, as well as the usual spirits. The bar snacks are reasonably priced and tasty. (1 Palmer Square; 921-0700)

New Hope.* This is a great town to go to for a night out of Princeton. About a 30 minute drive (North on 206, west on 518, across the bridge on Bridge St), it offers a lot of pubs all on the same road, and two dance clubs. There is also a more formal bar in nearby Lambertville on Bridge Street.

Triumph Brewing Company. Once you make your way down the long entrance, you'll find Triumph has a casual, twenty-something-young-professional-after-work atmosphere. Dinner is expensive, but the food's good. Triumph is the only place in town where you won't find a tap beer with the "Lite" modifier following its name. There's a selection of stouts, ales, pilsners, and just plain lager. All the beer is made on the premises, so it's never stale and always tastes good. (138 Nassau Street; 924-7855)

Yankee Doodle Tap Room. The Tap Room is part of the Nassau Inn. The bar staff are friendly and quick. Live music is normally played on Friday and Saturday nights, with varying standards. The clientele are normally in their thirties or older—a common feature of Princeton pubs. Check out the Norman Rockwell mural at some point. (10 Palmer Square; 921-7500)

The Street. For the cheapest, flowingest free beer, morph yourself into an undergraduate and visit some of the Eating Clubs on Prospect Ave. Thursdays and Saturdays are the big "going-out" nights. Bands play or DJs spin. Some good clubs for beginners are Tower, Terrace, Colonial, and Quad. Make it a goal once in your time here to snag an invitation to eat at Ivy, served by a waiter on a table bedecked with lit candelabras. (Up and down Prospect Ave.)

Travel Information

Students are encouraged to register their itineraries at Concur, a University-sponsored travel information platform. Many university negotiated discounts, such as car rental and hotel accommodation, and a free professional travel planning app (TripIt Pro), are readily available on Concur.

Airports and airlines

NJ Transit has a stop at Newark Airport. Make sure to buy a ticket to Newark Airport, and the AirTrain surcharge will be included. When you get off at the Newark Airport stop, you swipe your NJT ticket at the fare gates to take the AirTrain shuttle to the airport itself. The AirTrain is cheaper and usually faster than the Airporter Shuttle.

If you wish to engage the services of a private limousine (perhaps if you have a lot of luggage and time is of the essence), approximately $70 will purchase you a one-way trip from LVS Limousine Service (800-841-6369). The trip is about an hour each way, and you will be met either at your place for departures, or, for arrivals, at baggage claim when your flight gets in.

Newark Airport is a major hub of United, which offers nonstop flights to most destinations in Europe, North America and Asia, in terms of minimizing connections and transit time. For Southeast Asia, Singapore Airlines (800-742-3333) is the superior choice, offering a direct flight to Singapore and frequent connections beyond.

Philadelphia Airport is also a viable option for travel. It is less stressful than the NYC airports, but a little longer travel time to get there. Take the NJ Transit train to Trenton (20 minutes), then a SEPTA train to 30th Street Station (1 hour from Trenton). From there, take the R1 train to the Philadelphia Airport. If you can get a good price on an airline ticket (if you are headed to the mid or intermountain West, check out Frontier), it may be worth the hour and a half of train travel time.

JFK Airport hosts cheaper flights to East Asia and Europe with Air China, Aeroflot, Turkish Airlines and Lufthansa. The best (still time-consuming) way to get there is to take NJ Transit to Penn Station, switch trains for Jamaica and then take the LIRR to the airport.

NYC & Philadelphia

To get to/from NYC or Philadelphia, NJ Transit (800-772-2222) offers the cheapest train rides. The Dinky is a small train managed by the NJ Transit which connects the campus to Princeton Junction train station, where NJ Transit trains can be taken to NYC or Philadelphia and several destinations in between. The Dinky is located at the Princeton train station, the same location as the local Wawa. Schedules are available at train stations, on the Web, and in the Porter's Lodge. Round trip to NYC (Penn Station) is cheaper during non-peak hours. Amtrak (800-523-8720) is faster but much more expensive. To get to Philadelphia, take NJ Transit to Trenton and transfer to SEPTA.

You can also take the Suburban Transit bus to NYC (the 42nd St. Port Authority Bus Terminal). Buses leave every half hour from Palmer Square and take from 90 minutes to 2 hours. You have to purchase a ticket from the news kiosk on Palmer Square before you go and wait for the bus by FitzRandolph gate in front of Nassau Hall. You can get a copy of the most current bus schedule at the kiosk as well. More information on this bus can be found online. Be warned, though, that the Web site is not always up to date and the best information is from either the news kiosk or calling them (800-222-0492).

Campus Shuttle

The University provides an extensive shuttle network. The system services all of campus and features a website where students can track the GPS coordinates of shuttles. Please check with the official website for the latest schedules and services. Search the University website for current information: the shuttle is very useful!

Car Rental

Zipcar provides brand cars that students can rent by the hour. They have several locations in Princeton including a parking lot at the Spring Street garage. The University has an agreement with WeCar, with a car stationed at the GC and other car locations including Lot 21 and Frist.

Enterprise has three nearby franchises, all of which will pick you up and drop you off.

Travel Savings

Student Advantage Card. For a small fee you can get a Student Advantage card which is good for discounts at participating businesses and services. Its main benefit is a 15% discount on Greyhound and Amtrak tickets, making it well-worth the cost if you plan to be traveling interstate frequently.

STA Travel. An organization specializing in student travel packages. Better in person than online.

Undergraduates?

There is a myth of sorts that Princeton undergraduates and graduates mix like water and oil. Like most myths, it has its origins in some grain of truth, but is largely a truth obscured by the woolly cobwebs of time and hyperbole.

“Where is the GC?” Most undergrads don’t know, and don’t know us. Undergraduates rarely make it over to the GC, except the few brave souls who seek out Procter Hall or the Dbar their senior year before they graduate.

This division is not fate, however. There are a variety of ways to get involved in u-grad life at Princeton, arguably one of the best u-grad institutions in the nation.

Publications

There are several u-grad-centered publications that are worth reading. A few grad students also contribute articles and columns to these.

- Daily Princetonian. The University’s newspaper of record. Available around one’s department office, as well as at the Information Desk at Frist and the Daily Princetonian office next to the U-Store. Worth glancing through. Comprehensive sports coverage.
- Nassau Weekly. Also known as “the Nass” this is Princeton’s answer to Harvard Lampoon. Funny and often times raunchy articles. A great column called “verbatim” where people send in actual outrageous quotes heard around campus.
- American Foreign Policy. A project begun after 9/11, this new magazine leans to the right on policy issues.
- CommonSense. A national collegiate Humanist magazine, published by Princeton students. Articles debating religion, philosophy and politics.
- The Tory. Right wing magazine.
- Progressive Review. Liberal journal of opinion. Has had award-winning articles in the past.

Sports. Princeton is a jock school, with nearly half of the student body playing some sort of sports. Our teams aren’t bad, and worth checking out. Graduate students may purchase a pass for all athletic events (except NCAA events) for an annual fee ... please contact the ticket office for more information at 609-258-4849.

Social Life. The u-grads throw great parties, dances, shows, etc. Don’t think you can’t come just because you’re slightly older. Use your Passport to the Arts tickets to check out some of the undergraduates’ productions!

Campus Groups. Many undergrad groups welcome grad students. They value our experience. Many of the most active groups around Princeton have been joint grad-undergrad ventures. Graduate students cannot serve as president or treasurer of an undergraduate group, but can fully participate otherwise. Don’t hesitate to come to their meetings; they are listed online (<http://www.princeton.edu/odus/activities/organizations/directory/>).

Arts. Princeton students put on class acts: drama, music, dance. Again, many groups would love grad students to be involved either as participants or as spectators.

Terminology. Informants among the undergraduates have revealed a number of key phrases:

- “Arch sing” – Outdoor concert by any of the numerous a-capella groups on campus utilizing the acoustic properties of collegiate Gothic architecture.
- “Bicker” – There are two types of Eating Clubs. The ones that “bicker” are selective in their choosing of members. The other types of Clubs are “sign-ins” where anyone who wants to join can join.
- “Eating Clubs” – These are the big houses on Prospect Ave. where a good number of students, especially after Freshman year, eat and drink. They used to be much nastier and exclusive. Now mostly harmless, though the University officially doesn’t recognize them. Membership is expensive but the food is good and the beer is unending. If you know some undergraduates, you could try to ask them to take you to lunch at their Club.
- “Gut class” – An easy “A” class.
- “Independent” – A student who is not a member of an eating club. The university, believe it or not, provides them special housing eligibility for apartments with kitchens.

- “JP” – The Junior Paper is sort of pre-thesis completed (theoretically) by third year students before undertaking the final year thesis. Preceptors and TAs are likely to be sought for last-minute therapy.
- “On pass” – When an eating club has an event that only members and their friends (whom they give passes to) can attend.
- “Prox” – What those of us with prior institutionalization experience might call an ID or TigerCard.
- “Rock star professor” – Celebrity professors who are treated as gods by academics, but who go virtually unrecognized on the streets of non-academic America.
- “Sketchy” – Not so appropriate and stable. Usually refers to matters of social interaction and sexual mores.
- “The Street” – Prospect Avenue, home to the Eating Clubs and ergo nightlife. Also sometimes referred to as “Prospect.”
- “Viv” – Café Vivian in the Frist Campus Center, a popular coffeehouse and meeting place.
- “the Wa” – The Wawa market located next to the Dinky station.
- “Wa-Run” – A purchasing expedition undertaken usually late at night, taking advantage of the Wa’s never closing and its fine range of food.
- “Walk of shame” – The early morning walk home after waking up in a strange bed.

You & Your Undergrads!

The undergraduates dwell for their first two years in 4 residential colleges: Butler/Wilson, Rocky (short for Rockefeller)/Mathy (pronounced “Matt-ee”), Forbes, and Whitman. They each have a cafeteria open to grad students on the meal plan. Princeton has a culture of intervention, so students who are doing poorly – academically, mentally, physically, or otherwise – there are professionals to be alerted.

Graduate students can participate in Residential College life in a number of ways: run language tables, serve as tutors, etc. If you love or think you’d love working more closely with undergraduates, consider applying to be a Residential Graduate Student.

Princeton undergraduates go on in life to be successful in life and in their professions. They are interesting, ambitious, and smart kids - worth getting to know. The fact that you are a grad student doesn’t matter much in the end. In fact, our status has a certain allure to it and you may be peppered with questions such as “where do the graduate students live?”

Important Times of Year

General Exam Periods. Most departments have General Examinations for Ph.D. candidates. Please be considerate during these periods and keep quiet, especially at night. The General Examination periods for the academic year can be found on the academic calendar.

The Breaks. There are several breaks scheduled in the Academic Calendar: Fall Recess, Thanksgiving Recess, Winter Recess, Intersession, and Spring Recess. In general, Procter Hall will be closed for dinner over these breaks, so plan accordingly. However, breakfast is usually served Monday through Friday during all breaks with the exception of Winter Recess.

House Committee Elections. Elections are held each year in the Fall, with balloting outside Procter Hall. Please consider running—all you need is a petition with 30 signatures of residents (and their room numbers).

Room Draw. Pay attention in March for announcements regarding room draw for the next year. There is a separate summer application for students remaining over the summer.

Movearound. The GC is open and operating all year. At some point over the summer, you will be relocated to your fall assignment if you are moving into a different GC room. (“Handyman Dan” is a member of the Princeton maintenance staff, and several students have hired him to help with moving. Call 609-599-4073.)

Reunions. Usually the first week in June, Princeton Reunions are the largest, most lavish of any school! There is the infamous P-rade where thousands of alumni/ae march down Nassau Street, starting with the oldest living alum. Each graduating class has its own special orange and black ‘beer jacket’; at their 25th Reunion they upgrade to a distinctively tacky blazer in the same color scheme. Reunions also entail a few nights of wild partying by the upper to professional classes, at ‘tent parties’ organized by class year—you’ll need to purchase a wristband to get in, so watch your email for details in May. Bands play, beer is drunk, people dance, kids are running around – it’s a great time for all. Don’t miss the spectacular fireworks display and show. There are also opportunities to work for big bucks as a staff member on Reunion weekend.

Landmarks of the Graduate College

Cleveland Tower

Dedicated to the memory of President Grover Cleveland, the Tower is probably the most recognizable feature of the GC. The key is available in the Porter's Lodge and the Tower is open for visitation during certain hours by Princeton affiliates and their guests. Visitors are not allowed to enter the tower alone. If you brave a long and narrow spiral staircase, there is a nice view from the top. The interior also contains an interesting shrine to Cleveland maintained by Hawaiians that can be glimpsed from the staircase. The tower is closed in inclement weather and during generals periods, no one is allowed up the tower, due to safety reasons. And be careful not to lock yourself in. For further information, contact the Porter's Lodge at 609-258-3443. A PUID is needed for entry

The Cleveland Tower also houses a magnificent manually-played bell instrument called a carillon (<https://gradschool.princeton.edu/about/carillon>). It is the fifth largest instrument in North America, the largest bell of which weighs 12,880 pounds. Except during PhD exams, the carillon is played regularly on Sundays at 1:00pm by the University Carillonneur and throughout the week by student carillonneurs. Carillonneurs from around the world are invited annually to participate in the Summer Concert Series held Sundays during July and August. For more information on the carillon or learning to play it, please contact Lisa Lonie, University Carillonneur, LLonie@hotmail.com.

Pyne Tower

This is the second tallest tower in the GC. The stained-glass window in the anteroom in front of Procter Hall is by Charles J. Connick and commemorates six GC residents who died in World War I. The military saints of the four nations where the students died are depicted: St. George of England, St. Joan of Arc of France, St. Michael of Belgium, and St. Maurice of Italy.

Procter Hall

Procter Hall is the GC dining hall and a masterpiece of modern Gothic Revival architecture. Its most commanding feature is the stained glass window opposite the main entrance. It was made by William and Annie Lee Willet of Philadelphia and depicts the seven Liberal Arts: grammar, logic, rhetoric, geometry, arithmetic, astronomy, and music. The Latin motto beneath the window means: "Neither be ye called masters, for one is your Master, even Christ." The motto over the fireplace means: "Enter good; leave better." Industrialist Henry Clay Frick¹ donated the original organ in Procter Hall, but it has been replaced by a cheaper model; the organ is still played on occasion. Keys to the organ chamber may be borrowed from the Porter's Lodge after being approved to do so.

The elevated High Table sits under the central window. Several times a year, distinguished persons are invited to dine at High Table with a small number of students. Shortly before a High Table dinner, an invitation and signups will be done by email. The High Table is not used at any other time.

The North Courtyard

The archway behind Dean West's left shoulder leads into the North Courtyard, home of OGC entryways 16 through 21.

Wyman Garden

¹Was Frick a murderer? In 1891, nine striking coke oven workers were shot to death by the deputised agents of Frick Coke Co. While Frick was the superintendent of the Carnegie Steel Company in 1892 it was under his watch that the Homestead Strike occurred pitting "locked-out" iron and steel workers and their families against the company and its Pinkerton guards. Frick refused to recognise the union, evicted striking workers' families, and brought in strike-breakers. 10 workers and a little boy were killed, dozens of men, women and children were injured. The young anarchist Alexander Berkman (lover of Emma Goldman) - on hearing of the gun-fight between the steel men and the Pinkertons - hastened to Homestead, burst into Frick's office, and shot and stabbed him a number of times. Frick lived a long life, however. Berkman was sent to prison, while Goldman became the world's most famous anarchist thinker and activist.

Located between the west end of Procter Hall and Springdale Road, this well-maintained garden is open to the public from dawn to dusk. Students should enter through the entrance near the New Graduate College; the Dean's backyard entrance is reserved for special occasions.

The Sculptures

The larger-than-life figure seated in the middle of the Main Courtyard is Dean Andrew Fleming West, first Dean of the Graduate School (1901-1928) and administrator responsible for our remote location. Dean West's head serves as a popular perch for local birds. The statue was designed by R. Tait McKenzie and was the gift of William Cooper Procter. Gaston Lachaise's Floating Figure and Kenneth Snelson's Northwood II decorate the NGC. Both sculptures are part of the 21-piece Putnam outdoor sculpture collection dotting the campus. A small brochure describing the collection is available at the U-Store.

Squirrels, Deer, Woodchucks, Rabbits

Our fine furry friends love to hang around the GC. On a balmy spring night, you may see deer loitering around the NGC – do not scare them! Squirrels are our constant companions. Oh, and do not forget to lock your window screens; they love to drop by unexpectedly, chew through your containers, and snack on any food they can find in your room. If they chew through your window screens, as has been known to happen, call x8-8000 for repairs. And beware of the ninja squirrels who sometimes come flying out of the outdoor trash cans. (Very rarely, residents may have a much-too-close encounter with the local animals and get bitten. If this happens to you, visit McCosh immediately for a checkup.)

Bicycles

Please lock your bike to one of the grey eyelets located around the GC. Bikes are not allowed to be left free-standing under the archways and your bike will be towed. Every now and then a bike is stolen, so do keep them locked up, even if you are only leaving for a minute. If you suspect a parked bike has been abandoned, please let the House Committee know and we will try to facilitate its removal. Periodically Public Safety will sweep through and remove abandoned bikes, so if you are leaving campus for a long period, put your bicycle in storage in the basement, do not leave it in a rack! Don't forget to register your bicycle at Transportation and Parking Services, 609-258-7655.

History of the Graduate College

The Graduate School

The Graduate School was established in 1901, although informal graduate work was carried out as far back as the 18th century—James Madison did six months of graduate study in 1771, making him the first graduate student outside of the area of theology. In the 1870s, Princeton awarded its first graduate degrees. In 1896, the College of New Jersey became Princeton University, and Giger Professor of Latin Andrew Fleming West (Class of 1874) began to advocate the creation of a Graduate School and a Graduate College. On December 13, 1900, the University trustees voted to establish a Graduate School; Professor West was appointed Dean, starting in fall 1901. A “Graduate House” called Merwick was the first graduate residence on campus. In 1906, Mrs. Josephine Thomson Swan left a bequest of $275,000 for the construction of a graduate college—her name is memorialized in stone on the north wall of the Main Court, and the proper name for the Main Court (which is almost never used) is “Thomson College”, after Senator John R. Thomson (Class of 1817).

West vs. Wilson

Woodrow Wilson (later Governor of New Jersey and President of the United States) was at that time President of Princeton University. He wanted the Graduate College to be constructed on the main campus so that undergraduates and graduate students could interact with each other. Dean West favored the current location, by the golf course, which had also been favored by the late Grover Cleveland (former US President), as a University trustee. In 1909, William Cooper Procter (Class of 1883) donated $500,000 for the graduate college project, provided that a site could be found that would be acceptable to him; Procter was a friend of West’s and by this request meant that the new college should be built where West wanted. Much argument ensued. In 1910, Isaac Wyman (Class of 1848) died and left $794,000 for the construction of a graduate college, provided that it be built where West wanted it. The trustees accepted the bequest, and President Wilson resigned soon after. M. Taylor Pyne (Class of 1877) donated the funds necessary for the construction of Pyne Tower. Construction began in May 1911, and the dedication was made on October 22, 1913. The architect was Ralph Adams Cram of Boston. Cleveland Tower was built as a memorial to Grover Cleveland and funded by public donations. Dean West occupied Wyman House, the official residence of the Dean of the Graduate School, and Harold Crosby Butler (Class of 1892) was named the first Master in residence.

Additions

In 1927, William Cooper Procter made a further donation that was used (was University funds) to build the North Court. The same year, the Class of 1892 donated the carillon in Cleveland Tower. The New Graduate College, consisting of the Procter and Compton Quadrangles, was built in 1963. (The Butler Apartments, the first housing for married graduate students, were opened shortly after the Second World War; the Lawrence Apartments were built in 1966.) In 1961, women were first admitted to the Graduate School, and housed in the Annexes; in 1968, women were first housed in the Graduate College. The Debasement Bar was opened in 1970, and named by Tom Reed *71.

Administration

Dean West retired in 1928. His successors were: Dean Augustus Trowbridge (Physics), 1928-1933; Dean Luther P. Eisenhart (Mathematics), 1933-1945; Dean Hugh S. Taylor (Chemistry), 1945-1958; Dean Donald R. Hamilton (Physics), 1958-65; Dean Colin S. Pittendrigh (Biology), 1965-1969; Dean Aaron Lemonick (Physics), 1969-1973; Dean Alvin Kernan (English), 1973-1977; Dean Nina Garsoian (Near Eastern Studies), 1977-79; Dean Theodore Ziolkowski (Germanic Languages and Literatures), 1979-92; Dean Albert J. Raboteau (Religion), 1992-1994; Dean John F. Wilson (Religion), 1994-2002, Dean William Russel (Chemical Engineering), 2002-2014, and Dean Sanjeev Kulkarni (2014-present).

Masters

The first Master of the Graduate College (previously Merwick House, before the Graduate College was completed in 1913) was Howard Crosby Butler (1905-1922). He was followed by William Gillespie (1923-1939), Sidney Lawrence Levengood (1939-1948), Dean James Thorpe (1949-1953), Frank Card Bourne (1954-1957), Jerome

Blum (1958-1978), Barbara and Raymond Hill (1979-1981), Gerald Geison (1982-1984), and Victor Preller (1985-1990). The tradition was terminated in 1990.

“As Much like Oxford as Monkeys could Make It”

The Princeton Graduate School: A History. Edited by Patricia Marks. Princeton: Association of Princeton Graduate Alumni, 2000. Reviewed by Anthony Grafton. [Reprinted from the Prince Magazine, January 22, 2001.]

We sit there, we historians, in yellow-tiled Dickinson Hall, and we listen to the Orange Key guides taking groups around campus. We admire their ability to walk backwards, appreciate their enthusiasm – and even enjoy hearing the old stories about the downspout on the chapel for the 100th time. We’re especially pleased when a guide departs from the script, as one did a couple of years ago. “Note the ivy growing up professor Grafton,” he quipped, to the amusement of his group, as I staggered by, schlepping a load of books back to Firestone.

But we do have our doubts about some components of the tour: especially when we hear guides assuring the punters that Princeton barely has a graduate school, and that professors here, unlike those at other research universities, devote virtually all their time, energy and affection to their undergraduates. That’s just not true. The graduate school and its students form a vital strand in Princeton’s past and an essential part of its life.

“The Princeton Graduate School: A History” is a collaborative work, originally published in the 1970s and now reedited by Patricia Marks and brought down to the present by James Axtell. Dean by dean and building by building, it tells a complex and bittersweet story that many Princeton undergraduates and alumni – and most visitors – don’t know.

Individual graduates stayed on at Princeton to do more advanced work as early as the 18th century. But the real graduate school came into existence in the years around 1900, as Americans flocked to do Ph.D’s in Germany, and Princeton – like many of its rivals – decided to transform itself. Presidents McCosh, Patton and Wilson worked in very different ways. But they all agreed that Princeton could become a real university only if it could attract graduate students working at the frontiers of their field – and professors of international reputation to guide them. The plan to offer systematic graduate education accompanied efforts to hire great scholars and scientists and build libraries and laboratories. No graduate school, no university: just a fine liberal arts college, Willams by the Lake.

By 1913 graduate students had a Gothic home in the Graduate College, a spectacular pastiche encrusted with curlicues and moldings by the influential architect Ralph Adams Cram (“as much like Oxford as monkeys could make it,” said [British philosopher] Bertrand Russell). Princeton stole more than an incongruous building style from the Brits. For decades, residents of the Graduate College wore gowns to dinner, recited a Latin grace before meals and sent a committee to discuss problems with the college’s resident faculty Master.

Still, during the next century, Princeton’s graduate school developed a coherent, very American style of its own. It always remained small. Princeton graduate students received, most of the time, better financial support and more consistent advising than their colleagues elsewhere, but they also received pressure – not always gentle – to work intensively, finish their degrees and go away. Not for Princeton, the slow, reflective version of graduate study long practiced at Berkeley, Chicago and Harvard.

The regime seems austere. But recently, as the academic job market has remained in the doldrums and the very possibility of working one’s way through graduate school has vanished, Princeton has become a national model for selective and rapid training of students, most of whom finish and find jobs. Even the Colossus of the North in Cambridge, Mass., has begun to emulate us.

In a conservative university, the graduate school has stood for change. The Graduate School accepted and honored Jews like Richard Feynman in the 1930s. It admitted African Americans in the 1940s and women in the 1960s, and long ago began to attract large numbers of international students, now one of the college’s priorities as well.

This decorous history destroys a number of stereotypes. Many outsiders and some Princetonians will be surprised to learn that for decades, the majority of Princeton graduate students were undergraduate alumni – and that Princeton’s chief administrators long tried hard to convince more students from the college to earn doctorates and teach. A generation and more ago, in an era of livelier politics, graduate students joined undergraduates in planning and staging demonstrations. They articulately denounced the University’s involvement with the Defense Department and its investments in South Africa. Widespread myths to the contrary, finally, graduate students do a great deal of this college’s teaching – often very well indeed.

Still, as Axtell acknowledges in his excellent final chapter, the University community – and the college above all – have never fully accepted the graduate school. Woodrow Wilson, President when the school was created, wanted to put it on the main campus. He thought graduate students should live and mingle with the undergraduates (one plan would have dropped it where the School of Architecture now sits). But he lost out – not for the last time – after a long and bitter struggle with Andrew Fleming West, first dean of the graduate school and a brilliant politician. West envisioned the school as an elite establishment, uncontaminated by contact with the college. His statue still broods over the Graduate College's main quad, far away on its hill above the golf course.

West's victory, appropriately for a classicist, proved Pyrrhic. In recent years, the University has given the school more and more financial support and public recognition. The last three presidents have been products of the graduate school (Robert Goheen '40 graduated from the college as well). Graduate alumni are formally recognized as alumni march in the P-rade. Geographically and socially, however, the school has been – and remains – on the margins. Princeton fosters little of the active social contact between graduate and undergraduate students that takes place more often at the other great universities we compete with. If Wilson had won his fight with West, Lake Carnegie would not have turned to lemonade. But undergraduate life might well be more intellectually exciting, and graduate life less bleak.

Here, as at other old universities, ghosts walk the quads, next to the tourists. None of them is sadder than the spirit of Wilson's Princeton, the real university that never quite took on material form. Like many good histories, this one tells as much about possibilities never realized as it does about the names and deeds of presidents and deans.

Acknowledgments

Many thanks to the following graduate students and staff who took the time to suggest revisions for the 2008-2009, 2009-2010, and 2012-2013 Guides: Velga Stokes, Sam Taylor, Jennifer Telaar, Jade Vichyanond, and Marissa Smith.

The Graduate Student's Guide to the Universe is a compilation of the work of the current House Committee and many former House Committee officers. Our predecessors are too many to name, but they deserve sincere thanks for their efforts. Thanks in particular to past House Committee Secretaries: Elliot Ratzman (2002-2003); Sharon Bewick (2003-2004); Kareen Rozen (2004-2007); Kolia Sadeghi (2007-2008); Giri Parameswaran (2008-2009); Dan Sirbu (2012-2013), and Yecheng (Kent) Cao (2014-2015). Also Eric Adelizzi, Beau Bellenfant, Erik Encarnacion, Andrea Jones, Lisa Schreyer, Donna Sy and Rafael Parente (2019-2020) for research, information, corrections, and feedback in past years. The watercolor of Cleveland Tower on the front cover is (C) 2006 David Liao.
